KANSAS AND THE CHEROKEE COUNTRY.

From New-York to Kansas—Local News—State Politics—The Cherokee Expedition, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LEAVENWORTH, Thursday, July 31, 1862.

The miracle wrought by the railway and steam-engine is not fully realized by us, except when it vanquishes time and space in long, continuous journeys. It is wonderful enough for the traveler to breakfast in New-York and sup in Boston, or dine in Albany; but when he breakfasts in New-York on Monday, and in Kansas on Thursday, he begins to wonder and the marvel was crowned when the progress of the car this morning drove me out of my berth from sleep.

It is always pleasant for the traveler to find cause for commendation. When last I took this road, the luxury of dinner was, so far as concerned the connections of the railways over which I traveled. From New-York to Chicago, indeed, all was well; the arrangements of the New-York Central, Great Western of Canada, and Michigan Central Railroads, have become, by a patient and intelligent application of system and labor, almost as reliable as the courses of the planets. But the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Roads, forced us to pay a tribute to a Chicago hotel, as the half-finished Mississippi and Missouri Rivers compelled a like tax of time and money at Quincy and Hannibal. Alas, both is changed. In less than an hour from my arrival in Chicago, I was again hurrying along over the rails; another hour, early morning, sufficed to cross the "Father of Waters" in time for "the train," and I found me in the comfortable quarters of supper at a wretched Quincy hotel; and a half hour, the same evening, at St. Joseph, secured our passage in the cars of the Platte County Road which brought us to a point only a few miles distant from this chief city of Kansas. Only two days and nights from New-York! and the day made with every comfort that good roads and cars can furnish, and every convenience and attention that can obtain.

LOCAL NEWS.

Here arrived, the local news I find to be not sensational. A drought cuts down the Spring crops in Southern Kansas, but leaves an abundant yield of wheat; elsewhere in the State, the prospect is bountiful. As for money, the war has made Kansas rich; that is, it has redified the coffers drained by the late famine, and enabled the settlers to restock the farms denuded by old thefts of Missouri Border Ruffians. If Kansas still blunds, the rock is transitive. Never were prairies lovelier than those which now undulate under her July sun; never breezes purer than those which temper her Summer heats. She is recuperated, and again, with smiling face, invites the emigrant to choose for himself from the loveliest homes that nature ever offers to the kindly culture of Art.

STATE POLITICS.

But her politics are still turbulent; otherwise they would not suffice Kansas wants. Her Secretary of State and Auditor, convicted of misdemeanors in office by the Senatorial tribunal, refused to abide the decision; and the Supreme Court has just affirmed it, and peremptorily bidden them vacate the offices they have forfeited. Upon the Governor—unconvicted, but generally esteemed the chief criminal—will devolve the duty of filling the vacancies thus made. His enemies whisper that he will reappoint the same men. I cannot think him so desperate; should he do so, I should not wonder if the exhausted patience of a greatly abused people should dedicate his victim of speedy vengeance.

THE CAMP.

The "grim chieftain," is on his way; and the report which outruns his arrival, of his novel powers for recruiting white, black and red soldiers for the Republic, makes his coming an event impatiently expected by all. He was last heard of at Chicago; and Gen. BLUNT has gone as far as Quincy to meet and return with him. Verily, LANE, just now, is an omnipotence in Kansas. Officially, laboriously, sagaciously, has he woven the mysterious threads that fate has given to his hands, till the meshes of his web have involved all the paramount influences of the young State. In next Governor, Representative, Legislature will be—Lane.

THE CHEROKEE EXPEDITION.

This enterprise, as you may have heard, has come to grief. It started out in good spirits, but has succeed from the national curse of worthless officers. The leaders have placed each other under arrest, and are now here with a cloud of witnesses to answer respectively, charges of mutiny and drunkenness in the face of the enemy. The trial will be held immediately; after which it is to be hoped that Gen. BLUNT will himself take the field and crop those fruits of success that hang ripening, waiting for the competent hand that can accomplish their gathering.

From Dr. GILPATRICK, Surgeon of one of the regiments of the expedition, I have derived some very interesting facts in regard to the Cherokees and other Southern tribes, and their relations to the rebellion. Some of these facts I can give you, and some I cannot; were the Government as prompt in action as it should and might be, I could safely give them all.

When the expedition approached the Arkansas region, Dr. GILPATRICK went forward with dispatches to Chief JOHN ROSS. His reply you have seen. That his people have been forced into an alliance with the rebels, is true; and equally true that the tardiness of our Government in giving him succor, is the cause. Col. COOPER, with a rebel force of from 3,000 to 10,000 men, lies encamped on the south side of the Arkansas River, prepared to enforce submission to the Confederate edicts, unless overmatched by a superior Union force. He has ordered Ross to press his proclamation of conscription, the effect of which would be to enrol the Cherokee warriors in the rebel army. Now, four-fifths of these warriors are loyal to the Union; and a large proportion have already enlisted in the National regiments forming a part of the expedition. Ross is believed to be a Union man at heart; and hence it is not thought that he will greatly resist the act of his arrest and trial, on charges, together with one of his sons, a nephew and several other chiefs, although this act will prevent his obeying the order of the rebel commander. It was intended that a general council of all the people of the nation should be held, at which they should solemnly, by vote, annul the treaty with the rebels, and relieve Ross from his embarrassing position. This council has been prevented by the disgraceful quarrel among the officers of the expedition, which paralyzes its power, and, for the time, leaves the Indians still at the mercy of COOPER's forces.

The Cherokee Nation has its own political divisions. It has brought with it an old quarrel from the East—the Ross and BOUDINOT factions. That of Ross is numerically strongest, and is loyal; that of BOUDINOT is rebellious. The whole fighting force of the Nation is about three thousand men. The Creeks and Seminoles aggregate about the same number of warriors, and the preponderance of loyal men is about the same. The Choctaws and Chickasaws, on the other hand, are intensely rebel. The Creeks are divided into two secret organizations—the rebels are called "Knights of the Golden Circle," and the loyalists "Pin Indians," from their badge—a pin fastened in their clothing—which they first used as a mark of distinction. Of all the friendly warriors in these nations nearly two thousand are already enrolled in the regiments of Cols. BRYSON and PHILLIPS; the balance will be had as soon as Government adopts the policy of arming the black men. Appreciated if LANE shall succeed in bringing the Cherokee country.

I question Dr. GILPATRICK as to the capacity of these Indians, whether they will make more serviceable usages, for discipline and service. His replies are most encouraging. He entertains no doubt that they will prove efficient warriors. He has seen the organization made, so far as it has gone, and should know. If he is correct, the Government can at least as not secure eight or ten thousand men from this quarter with which to exterminate PRICE and his savages. Why shall it not be done? J. M. W.

ARMING THE NEGROES.

The Policy of Arming the Negro Slaves—Its Effect on the Loyalists North and South.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have been reading the speeches of Messrs. PHILLIPS and Senator SUMNER, the essays of O. A. BROWNSON, the editorials of the Tribune, and various other arguments in favor of emancipating the slaves of the South, and sending them into the field to fight for the Union against their rebel masters. My sympathies and prejudices are all in favor of such a step. Our right to take it I consider too clear for argument. It is absurd to suppose that we cannot arm a slave against rebellion because he is a rebel's slave. We have armed the chickens, bullets and sons of rebels to fight against them. We have used their horses, their money, their land, whenever we could get hold of them, in the same cause. Why, I should like to know, have we not the same right, in morals and in law, to use their slaves in the same way?

The whole question, to my mind, is one of policy—of expediency, for in spite of the holy horror with which that word will be received by the persons I have named and the school they represent, it is our highest duty to consult expediency in this as in every other movement of the war. Whatever, not being intrinsically wrong, is expedient—that is, whatever will aid in crushing the rebellion and restoring the Union,—we ought to do. Whatever, even if it is just and right in itself, will retard that result or render its attainment doubtful, we ought not to do. President LINCOLN, to whose discretion this matter is left by Congress, must consider mainly—indeed exclusively—the expediency of the step proposed, which is most earnestly and even vehemently pressed upon him by a very large section of the North.

Will the suppression of the rebellion be aided or will it be retarded, by arming the negro slaves to fight against it?

The advocates of the measure say,—here are 4,000,000 of people in the South, all loyal,—all willing and eager to fight for the Union. What idiocy to reject the physical strength they would bring to the Union cause—simply because they are black, or because they are slaves! They are men and can fight, and that is all we want of them. There are among them, say 250,000 fighting men;—why not let them take the place of 250,000 of our brothers and sons who are in the field? Why should we fight the battles alone, while they stand ready to offer their help?

There is great force in this. If all the assertions on which the argument rests are facts, it is unanswerable, and the course suggested should be pursued, unless it involves disadvantages that outweigh its benefits. But is it quite certain that the premises are sound? Do we know that the slaves are all loyal? They ought to be, doubtless,—but so ought their masters. It seems incredible that they should not be,—but so seems the whole rebellion. None but absolute idiots, one would think, could possibly refuse to fight for the Union when it would give them freedom, wages, education, families and prosperity, instead of Slavery, which denies them all these;—yet the poor whites of the South, who have quite as much to gain as the slaves by the overthrow of Slavery, and quite as much to lose by the triumph of the rebellion, fill up the ranks of the rebel army, and fight the Union soldiers with intense and desperate hatred on every field. Is it not possible that the black slaves may be as great fools—as ignorant of their own interest, as blind to their own future,—as the poor whites of the Southern States? If so, it is altogether probable that wherever the sway of Rebeldom extends over them, they would fight for it instead of for us. True, we might have the help of those slaves whom their masters have deserted in flying from our armies, or who have escaped voluntarily from servitude. But I do not suppose we could muster 5,000 such, all told, up to the present time.

But have we any evidence, apart from the assertions of the Abolitionists, and what would seem to be their natural inclination, of a wish on the part of the slaves to fight for the Union? Have they anywhere shown any such desire? If so, when, where and how? The condition of Southern society has never been so favorable to negro revolts as now. The great bulk of the white males are in the army; the plantations are left to the women and slaves; the military force is all away, and the usual police force substantially disbanded. Yet in not a single instance, since the war broke out, have we heard of any attempt on the part of the slaves to achieve their own freedom or aid the "Abolition" Government at Washington, by insurrection or revolt. So far as we have any information, the slaves have never been less disposed to revolt than now. This certainly is a most remarkable fact,—one which disappoints all my expectations and falsifies the predictions of men of all parties throughout the Northern States. What it indicates I cannot say;—but it certainly does not indicate that eagerness to fight for the Union which is attributed to these slaves by the Abolitionists. It begets in my mind the fear that this resource might fail us, if we should resort to it;—that if Mr. LINCOLN should call for negro troops never so loudly, he might fail to get them, and that we should be left, therefore, to face all the disadvantages of the measure proposed, with a very small offset in the way of positive benefits.

What are these disadvantages?

I put foremost among them the effect such a step would have upon Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, Maryland, Delaware, and whatever of loyalty there is in the Slave States. I think no one who knows anything of the sentiment of those States can doubt that this effect would be disastrous in the highest degree. The interest of these States in Slavery is comparatively small; but their feeling on the subject is very deep, very intense, and would be very powerful in influencing their action. Nine-tenths of the loyal men in all those States regard negroes as their inferiors, and can never be brought, under any circumstances, or by any pressure, to recognize them, directly or indirectly, as their equals in any relation, or for any purpose whatever. We may say this is wrong, unchristian, absurd, intolerable, &c. It may be so. But this does not alter the fact, and unfortunately it is the fact alone which is important. For so long as they hold this belief, and are governed by this sentiment, right or wrong, they will act upon it, and it is their action which will affect results.

They will not go into the field to fight by the side of negro troops, for the Union or for anything else. They will themselves fight against their own sons and brothers who are in the rebel ranks. They will not tolerate the idea that negroes shall do so. They will not stand with us if we place a musket in the hands of every able-bodied slave in the South. We may do it if we will, and it may be right that we should do it, and it may be, as you like, demanded by the law of war; but we cannot alter the fact, nor can we alter its consequences; and without being the passive and servile creatures of Slavery in regard to anything that is future, the chances, in my judgment, are three to one that, if President LINCOLN calls negro slaves to arms, and sends them into the field, every one of those States will withdraw its troops and abandon the Union cause. They may not, but the chances are that they will, and before he takes action on the subject, President LINCOLN is bound to weigh these chances well.

Now I should regard such a step as infinitely disastrous—as fatal to the hope of crushing the rebellion and restoring the Union. Others do not so regard it, or, if they do, they do not greatly deprecate the result. PHILLIPS has always been openly for disunion. The Tribune was for disunion at the outset, if the South desired it. Secretary CHASE preferred Disunion to War. BROWNSON, who puts the case more clearly and strongly than any of them, in his Quarterly for July says:

"If these States are really loyal, the measure will not drive them out of the Union; if they are at heart disloyal, and willing to stay in the Union only on conditions that it keeps no measures not approved by them, the sooner they secede the better. The Government is either strong enough to maintain itself against any domestic combination that can be formed against it—or it is not. If it is, they can be subdued along with the Border Slaveing States; if it is not, then its perish for it is not worth sustaining. A Government that can govern only at the mercy or forbearance of a portion of its subjects, is no Government at all."

This sounds well. It smacks of authority, of power and of a prompt and peremptory use of both; and this, in these days when force has come to be the only law, is pleasing and popular. But it is utterly sophistical and false. I should like Mr. BROWNSON to name a single Government on the face of the earth which can govern, or which dare make the attempt to govern, without consulting the wishes, the sentiments, the opinions, the prejudices, of its subjects. The day has gone by when rulers deemed of governing on such principles and in such an absolute style as Mr. BROWNSON advocates. The Pope is the only monarch living who talks in this strain; even the Emperor of Austria, and the Czar of Russia have found it impossible to govern except "at the mercy and forbearance of their subjects." Upon Mr. BROWNSON's theory the government might go on and do something which should drive Illinois and Ohio, and Pennsylvania, and New-York, out of the Union, and still be acting justly and wisely. It could still say, as he says for it now, "the government is either strong enough to maintain itself against any domestic combination, or it is not. If it is, then these States can be subdued along with the others. If it is not, then let it perish, for it is not worth sustaining." In the case we have supposed Mr. BROWNSON himself would ask whether it was best to drive these States out;—whether justice and good policy would sanction any step which would be likely to involve that result;—whether it would not be infinitely better every way to retain them in the Union, and to keep their armies on the side of the Union, if it could be done without any momentous and remediless sacrifice; and that is precisely the question which I ask in the present instance. Is it worth while, for the sake of the few negro regiments we might gain, to take a step which might throw these States into the Southern Confederacy, take their 80,000 troops from the Union armies, and give them to the rebels, close again the Mississippi, and carry the northern line of the rebellion to the Ohio and Susquehannah? I do not say that all these results would follow. But I do say the chances that they might follow are great enough to make us pause before rushing upon them.

Mr. BROWNSON thinks the Border States have been very "insolent," "dictatorial," and "exacting," in prescribing terms and conditions to their loyalty. "The Government," he says, "has been sufficiently embarrassed already by its concessions to them. They are an integral part of the Union, and are as much bound to fight for it as Illinois or Massachusetts." This is true enough, and I sympathize with the feeling that pervades it. But it is only fair to remember that though the duty of these Border Slave States has been the same as ours, they have not had the same facilities for performing it. They have not had a united public sentiment to aid them, as we have. They had rebels at home to conquer first. They had a Pro-Slavery sentiment to contend with, which we had not. They had disloyal Executives and Legislatures to fetter their action. Their Governors,—the commanders of their armies, the keepers of their arsenals, the guides and rulers of their public sentiment were in league with the rebellion, and did everything in their power to drag those States into its vortex. Their loyal men had a much severer task than we have had in fighting rebellion. They have had to contend with adverse political opinions, with powerful prejudices, with the tremendous tide of hostile sentiment created by Slavery, and with many other influences, of which we have known nothing whatever. We are bound, in simple justice to these men, to make allowance for these peculiarities of their position, and for the absolute necessity they were under of seeking, in the form sometimes of concessions from the General Government, aid and support which we did not need.

In my opinion, we do need the continued aid of these Border States in our contest with the rebellion. Their defection now would be absolutely and, I fear, permanently fatal to our hope of restoring the Union. And it is for President LINCOLN to say whether, in his judgment, the chance of causing that defection by calling for negro troops, does not outweigh the advantages which such a step could reasonably be expected to secure to the Union cause.

Scarcely secondary to this evil of alienating the Border States, I am inclined to place the danger of creating damaging dissensions in the North, by the policy proposed. Thus far, public sentiment in all the loyal States has been substantially united in support of efforts to crush the rebellion. All party distinctions have been forgotten, and all questions likely to give rise to any considerable differences of opinion have been avoided. There has been a general disposition among all our people to unite in support of the Government,—waiving all their old differences and refusing to entertain questions likely to create new ones. It is this which has given such prodigious strength to the action of the Government. The people have been impatient of all attempts of political demagogues to revive party discussions, or to deal in criminations and recriminations concerning the origin of the war. And the Government has most wisely conducted this tendency of the public mind, and steered clear of all such issues and embarrassments.

Now it seems to me clear that we shall have an end of all this, if we emancipate the slaves and call them into the field. Whatever you or I may think of the justice of such a measure, our people are not agreed upon it. There is a very wide and a very deep division of public sentiment in regard to it. And that division will make itself felt upon the public action, if it is called into exercise. It will be felt upon the new enlistments,—upon the payment of taxes,—upon the voting of men and money for the war. It was weaken the vigor of the Government by destroying the unity of the people. And in this way I am afraid it will militate largely to the strength of the rebellion and postpone the prospect of its suppression. With a united North, and sentiment rising, growing, spreading and more emphatic every day, we should soon have a powerful party here at home hostile to the Administration and virtually active allies with the rebels of the South. At a meeting at Cooper Institute, the speech of Ex-Mayor WOOD, the language of the Express, the action of the Democratic Conventions in Connecticut, Vermont and Delaware, the Irish riots in Brooklyn, show clearly enough that we have all the elements of such a party already. What they need is something to rally upon—something to precipitate the floating sentiment and thus give organization, life and effective vigor to the movement. All this it would do in the measure proposed.

For these reasons, I confess I greatly fear that an attempt to arm the negro slaves would do much more hurt than good. I do not believe that it is necessary—I think we have strength to crush the rebellion without it. I believe we shall be stronger without it than with it.

I am glad to see, therefore, that the President in the exercise of the discretion with which he has been clothed, will confine the services of the negroes to digging trenches, building forts, and other labor of the utmost importance to our armies, but which does not involve the idea of military service. In this they can be infinitely useful. There are thousands of them already on hand available for it, and who ought to be employed at it. And the number is steadily and largely increased with every advancing step of our army in the Slave States;—for it is perfectly clear to every one that, with or without decrees of emancipation, Slavery disappears before our advancing troops. Wherever our flag has been planted by force and is maintained, Slavery has ceased to exist. Every slave who chooses freedom can be free. None who escape to our lines are hereafter to be surrendered by the military authorities. A very large portion of the labor that now falls with such severity upon our volunteers, many of whom are utterly unused to it, may be taken off their shoulders by the judicious employment of enfranchised slaves. But the fighting, our soldiers would prefer to do themselves. They do not ask or need the aid of negro troops. Yours, &c.,

A REPUBLICAN.

THE WAR ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

What Has Been Done at Vicksburgh.

The correspondent of the Chicago Times, under date of Memphis, July 29, thus sums up the result of the siege of Vicksburgh:

"When the Arkansas came down, the fleet lay helpless, like so many turtles on their backs; not a pound of steam to move themselves with, and each vessel carefully anchored so that, if she fired a gun, she was sure to take her next neighbor on board a transport. The small pretty floated leisurely along, delivering her fire right and left among the astonished fogies, who were too much dumbfoundered at her audacity to do much besides open their mouths and look, and finally rested under the protection of the friendly batteries. The Benton waked up then, and made a valorous rush at nothing, and got punctured for her pains. She might as well have rushed at the moon. She poked her nose around the corner, when there was nothing in the world to shoot at, and received the full fire of the batteries, and was glad enough to get back again, like a valorous gander charging to protect his geese, after the danger is past, and perchance running his nose into a hornet's nest. Then the fleet must run the blockade and sink her. They ran the blockade, but did not sink her. Some say it was dark, and they could not find her, and others say that when they found her, and picked her up, she was, like the Irishman's potato, too hot to hold. At all events, they left her there, although the supposition that they might have brought her away is by no means incredible. There were nine of them, all powerful steamers, and, if they had grappled with her, they might, by force of main force, nobody would have objected. But they did not do that. And then, they must knock her to pieces with rams. So, the two brave boats above mentioned went at her, and the rest looked on. It was like a boy-fight at the back of the school-house, where two do all the hair-pulling and finger-clawing, while the rest sit and enjoy it. Of course, the enemy considered it a joke, destitute of any serious intentions, and refused to accommodate them with a surrender. Perhaps, if they had all pitched in, as if they meant something, and backed up the supposition with their two hundred and odd guns, a different result would have been gained; but they never thought of that. Even the venerable Rosat who presides at the head of the Navy Department, would have got that through his hair sooner than they. If he is more imbecility, he ought to be made a figure-head for some bold rebel craft, like the Arkansas, and be compelled to live a thousand years to be shot at.

Having determined to evacuate, the small colony of a thousand negroes which had been employed on the canal, by whose united efforts the work of genius had effected a level five feet above the water-line, with an increasing ratio going on as the river fell, were disposed of by turning them loose into the woods. A portion were carried down the river and deposited on the shore in the neighborhood of their homes, and the whole pack numbered five hundred. This was a bitter pill for the blacks, who were sure that Kingdom Come had arrived when the Federals got there. They made a rush for the boats, and would have taken them by force had they dared. They were beaten off and told to shift for themselves, and they had no alternative except to take to the woods to starve, until they chose to go home to their masters. They went with the Federals so willingly, in many cases coming out of the woods where their masters had hidden them, and in many more insulting them most gratuitously in the process, that they at present stand in bodily fear of being killed, but they are content to run the risk between the danger of starvation and murder.

The canal remains, a monument of inefficiency. It is full five feet above the water, and as that fluid does not surmount such slight obstacles unaided, there is no chance of its being baptised. Until the Mississippi can be coaxed to run over the top of a moderate sized hill, it will never change its bed in that locality. The contrabands did their best to dig as fast as the river went down, but failed ignominiously. Half an inch a day was too much for them.

On the 24th FARRAGUT's fleet went down the river, and is now at New-Orleans. He took on board Gen. WILLIAMS and his four thousand men, and left them at Baton Rouge. On the same day DAVIS' flotilla left the position, and came up to the mouth of the Yazoo, where it now remains, waiting for more invulnerables to come down. The Essex and the Sumter, victims of the grand policy which has directed movements, are below Vicksburgh, and cannot get up. FARRAGUT left three of his gunboats to protect them, with a strong probability that the Arkansas will come out some fine morning, and gobble them all up before breakfast.

In the meantime the rebels were busy up the river. Batteries had been planted at various points, and the boats were being fired into continually. The Sallie Wood, a transport, which left the fleet on Sunday, the 21st, with dispatches, mail and passengers, was fired into at Island No. 82, immediately above Greenville, and disabled. Shots passed through her steam-pipe and machinery, and she was grounded on the island. The passengers and crew, some thirty in number, got ashore and roamed about the island until the most of them were captured. From Lieut. J. H. WINE, the only one who escaped, I learn some particulars. Lieut. JAMES C. BIMBLE, of Philadelphia, was sick, and there were others who were almost helpless. One party went up to the head of the island, and were taken the next forenoon. Those who were with Lieut. WINE took to the woods, and concealed themselves until the next day, when they discovered the Victoria going down. They could not make themselves heard, and she passed on. They returned to the woods. Lieut. BIMBLE was left behind at his own request, being unable to proceed further, and was captured. Lieut. WINE left the party to explore, and saw them no more, but met a negro the next day, who told him that they had got starved out and given themselves up. He continued his efforts to escape, and the next night waded to a low-head, or small island near, where he remained until taken off by the Carondelet, which passed. He was out, in all, four days, almost without food, and underwent the great est privations, but his perseverance saved him. All the rest of them were taken prisoners except the pilot, who escaped in a small boat. Lieut. TUPPS, of Jefferson County, Wis., is among the captured; also a Mr. FOWLER, of Chicago, an army contractor. The rebels burned the boat. The mails had been thrown overboard before she surrendered, and thereby prevented much valuable newspaper correspondence from the bottom of the Mississippi.

The Queen of the West was attacked at the same place on her way up, but she was well protected, and managed to come through. She got a large number of cannon balls through her, one of which made two pieces of the carpenter, who was instantly killed. There were many narrow escapes. The passengers occupied themselves in peppering their assailants with some old muskets which were on board, which probably did more execution than the rebels have planted batteries in three or four different places, and pass most effectually blockaded the river, so far as ordinary steamboats are concerned.

Regarding the action of July 22, the correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes:

At 6.30 A. M. the rebel Arkansas steamed with difficulty into the middle of the river, in front of the batteries, no doubt as an act of bravado, to show the Yankees first that she still existed through it all. On fair ground the Essex would "knock seven bells" out her. The sun shining directly in her face prevented the attack from being made at once. To fight or run afternoon the original plan of attack was carried into execution. It is said that the rebels expected into execution. It is said that the rebels expected into execution. It is said that the rebels expected would inevitably be the result of the fight, with a great loss of life, the enemy having not less than twenty of them, besides having received a number of heavy batteries—eighty guns in the full possession.

During the conference of this morning, I was unable to determine what damage the Essex did really receive. Now, I find it was too hasty in coming to the conclusion that she was entirely invulnerable. Two shots took effect in her, going through the iron plates, killing one man, and slightly wounding three. A number of the iron plates were all well dented, showing that she had not escaped without being struck. The Essex put three nine-inch shells through and through the Arkansas; the groans of the wounded were distinctly heard aboard.

Both squadrons were under way. DAVIS succeeded for a time—not more than a minute or two in duetting—in silencing the upper batteries, while FARRAGUT held the lower ones employed.

SOLDIERS' PAY.

Instructions in Preparing Claims for Arrears, Bounty Pensions, &c.

To enable those who have claims upon the United States, for months due deceased officers and soldiers, on account of military service rendered, whether in the regular or volunteer service, to obtain the same, the following information is furnished:

ORDER OF PAYMENT OF ARREARS OF PAY.

Order First.—If the deceased was married, payment will be made, first, to the widow; 2d, if no widow, to his child or children; (if minors, to a guardian.)

Order Second.—If he died unmarried—1st, to his father; 2d, if the father is dead, to the mother; 3d, if both parents are dead, to the brothers and sisters (according to seniority of age, the eldest first) in accordance with the laws of the State in which the deceased had his domicil.

OF BOUNTY.

The act approved July 11, 1862, provides "that said bounty shall be paid to the following persons, and in the order following, and to no other person, to wit: First, to the widow of such deceased soldier, if there be one. Second, if there be no widow, then to the children of such deceased soldier, share and share alike. Third, if such soldier left neither widow nor children, then and in that case, such bounty shall be paid to the following persons, provided they be residents of the United States, to wit: First, to his father, or if he shall not be living, or has abandoned the support of his family, then to the mother and the legal guardian of such minor children, the mother, as aforesaid, then such bounty shall be paid to the brothers and sisters of the deceased soldier, resident as aforesaid."

By the same act, the bounty of $100 to widows, &c., of volunteers is also given to the widows, &c., of those persons who have enlisted in the regular forces since the 1st day of July, 1861, or shall enlist in the regular forces during 1862, or be paid to the heirs named in this act. Widows of commissioned officers, and of soldiers dying after being discharged, are not entitled to bounty, nor are the widows of deceased three months' volunteers.

DEBIOLATRY.—In section 4 of "An act to grant pensions," approved July 14, 1862, it is provided, "that no money shall be paid to the widow, or children, or any heirs of any deceased soldier, on account of bounty, back pay, or pension, who have in any way been engaged in, or who have aided or abetted the existing rebellion in the United States; but the right of such disloyal widow or children, heir or heirs of such soldier, shall be vested in the loyal heir or heirs of the deceased, if any there be."

Information in regard to such cases will receive the attention of the accounting officers.

APPLICATION, PROOF, AND AUTHENTICATION.

APPLICATION.—The claimant or claimants must make a written application, under oath, and over his, her, or their own signature, stating his, her, or their name, age, residence, connexion to the deceased, with the letter or name of the captain of the company and regiment to which he belonged; time of his death and the nature of the pay claimed—whether "arrears of pay," &c.; and the "100 bounty," under act of July 22, 1861.

An application by a guardian should give the name and age of the ward or wards, and should be accompanied by letters of guardianship, or an authenticated copy thereof. In the application of a mother, claiming bounty, her husband being alive, the facts upon charging to protect his peace, after the danger is past, and perchance running his nose into a hornet's nest. Then the fleet must run the blockade and sink her. They ran the blockade, but did not sink her. Some say it was dark, and they could not find her, and others say that when they found her, and picked her up, she was, like the Irishman's potato, too hot to hold. At all events, they left her there, although the supposition that they might have brought her away is by no means incredible. There were nine of them, all powerful steamers, and, if they had grappled with her, they might, by force of main force, nobody would have objected. But they did not do that. And then, they must knock her to pieces with rams. So, the two brave boats above mentioned went at her, and the rest looked on. It was like a boy-fight at the back of the school-house, where two do all the hair-pulling and finger-clawing, while the rest sit and enjoy it. Of course, the enemy considered it a joke, destitute of any serious intentions, and refused to accommodate them with a surrender. Perhaps, if they had all pitched in, as if they meant something, and backed up the supposition with their two hundred and odd guns, a different result would have been gained; but they never thought of that. Even the venerable Rosat who presides at the head of the Navy Department, would have got that through his hair sooner than they. If he is more imbecility, he ought to be made a figure-head for some bold rebel craft, like the Arkansas, and be compelled to live a thousand years to be shot at.

Having determined to evacuate, the small colony of a thousand negroes which had been employed on the canal, by whose united efforts the work of genius had effected a level five feet above the water-line, with an increasing ratio going on as the river fell, were disposed of by turning them loose into the woods. A portion were carried down the river and deposited on the shore in the neighborhood of their homes, and the whole pack numbered five hundred. This was a bitter pill for the blacks, who were sure that Kingdom Come had arrived when the Federals got there. They made a rush for the boats, and would have taken them by force had they dared. They were beaten off and told to shift for themselves, and they had no alternative except to take to the woods to starve, until they chose to go home to their masters. They went with the Federals so willingly, in many cases coming out of the woods where their masters had hidden them, and in many more insulting them most gratuitously in the process, that they at present stand in bodily fear of being killed, but they are content to run the risk between the danger of starvation and murder.

The canal remains, a monument of inefficiency. It is full five feet above the water, and as that fluid does not surmount such slight obstacles unaided, there is no chance of its being baptised. Until the Mississippi can be coaxed to run over the top of a moderate sized hill, it will never change its bed in that locality. The contrabands did their best to dig as fast as the river went down, but failed ignominiously. Half an inch a day was too much for them.

On the 24th FARRAGUT's fleet went down the river, and is now at New-Orleans. He took on board Gen. WILLIAMS and his four thousand men, and left them at Baton Rouge. On the same day DAVIS' flotilla left the position, and came up to the mouth of the Yazoo, where it now remains, waiting for more invulnerables to come down. The Essex and the Sumter, victims of the grand policy which has directed movements, are below Vicksburgh, and cannot get up. FARRAGUT left three of his gunboats to protect them, with a strong probability that the Arkansas will come out some fine morning, and gobble them all up before breakfast.

In the meantime the rebels were busy up the river. Batteries had been planted at various points, and the boats were being fired into continually. The Sallie Wood, a transport, which left the fleet on Sunday, the 21st, with dispatches, mail and passengers, was fired into at Island No. 82, immediately above Greenville, and disabled. Shots passed through her steam-pipe and machinery, and she was grounded on the island. The passengers and crew, some thirty in number, got ashore and roamed about the island until the most of them were captured. From Lieut. J. H. WINE, the only one who escaped, I learn some particulars. Lieut. JAMES C. BIMBLE, of Philadelphia, was sick, and there were others who were almost helpless. One party went up to the head of the island, and were taken the next forenoon. Those who were with Lieut. WINE took to the woods, and concealed themselves until the next day, when they discovered the Victoria going down. They could not make themselves heard, and she passed on. They returned to the woods. Lieut. BIMBLE was left behind at his own request, being unable to proceed further, and was captured. Lieut. WINE left the party to explore, and saw them no more, but met a negro the next day, who told him that they had got starved out and given themselves up. He continued his efforts to escape, and the next night waded to a low-head, or small island near, where he remained until taken off by the Carondelet, which passed. He was out, in all, four days, almost without food, and underwent the great est privations, but his perseverance saved him. All the rest of them were taken prisoners except the pilot, who escaped in a small boat. Lieut. TUPPS, of Jefferson County, Wis., is among the captured; also a Mr. FOWLER, of Chicago, an army contractor. The rebels burned the boat. The mails had been thrown overboard before she surrendered, and thereby prevented much valuable newspaper correspondence from the bottom of the Mississippi.

The Queen of the West was attacked at the same place on her way up, but she was well protected, and managed to come through. She got a large number of cannon balls through her, one of which made two pieces of the carpenter, who was instantly killed. There were many narrow escapes. The passengers occupied themselves in peppering their assailants with some old muskets which were on board, which probably did more execution than the rebels have planted batteries in three or four different places, and pass most effectually blockaded the river, so far as ordinary steamboats are concerned.

Regarding the action of July 22, the correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes:

At 6.30 A. M. the rebel Arkansas steamed with difficulty into the middle of the river, in front of the batteries, no doubt as an act of bravado, to show the Yankees first that she still existed through it all. On fair ground the Essex would "knock seven bells" out her. The sun shining directly in her face prevented the attack from being made at once. To fight or run afternoon the original plan of attack was carried into execution. It is said that the rebels expected into execution. It is said that the rebels expected would inevitably be the result of the fight, with a great loss of life, the enemy having not less than twenty of them, besides having received a number of heavy batteries—eighty guns in the full possession.

During the conference of this morning, I was unable to determine what damage the Essex did really receive. Now, I find it was too hasty in coming to the conclusion that she was entirely invulnerable. Two shots took effect in her, going through the iron plates, killing one man, and slightly wounding three. A number of the iron plates were all well dented, showing that she had not escaped without being struck. The Essex put three nine-inch shells through and through the Arkansas; the groans of the wounded were distinctly heard aboard.

Both squadrons were under way. DAVIS succeeded for a time—not more than a minute or two in duetting—in silencing the upper batteries, while FARRAGUT held the lower ones employed.

SOLDIERS' PAY.

Instructions in Preparing Claims for Arrears, Bounty Pensions, &c.

To enable those who have claims upon the United States, for months due deceased officers and soldiers, on account of military service rendered, whether in the regular or volunteer service, to obtain the same, the following information is furnished:

ORDER OF PAYMENT OF ARREARS OF PAY.

Order First.—If the deceased was married, payment will be made, first, to the widow; 2d, if no widow, to his child or children; (if minors, to a guardian.)

ARMY AND NAVY INTELLIGENCE.

A full company of Gen. HEINTZELMAN's own regiment, the Sixteenth (New) Regular Infantry, arrived at the Navy-Yard on Monday with recruits for Fort Preble, on Portland Bridge, here. On the Nahant Digital, where they will entertain the gallant Sixteenth. They were met officially here, and had the band of the Navy-Yard with them. The First Battalion of the Sixteenth Winthrop is in the Senate, when Henry Clay threatened him with the lash of Southern institutions fifteen years ago.

But let us hope that the way may be cleared long enough to make it safe, and then we will easily get rid of the Rebellion instanter. Mr. CONRAD had just said, "Let the Rebels come on. We will meet them." This was a fearful jeopardy. When the Englishmen of the other side meet their descendants on this, the earth will shake to its centre.

Fifty years of unprecedented intelligence have made the intellects of both fearfully acute, and the war waged between such intellects and arms will be such as the world never yet has seen. Fifty millions of them fighting at the same time would revolutionize and drag into its vortex the whole earth, including Heaven awful to contemplate. Let us rather hope that such a dreadful may not occur. Let us rather hope that, as we are, millions, pouring forth one after another, as has been the case since this war, we may keep the enemy in check until the whole people of the North may have the scales of slavery and servile idiotcraft removed from their eyes, and fighting as a free manhood saw the cause of this war. Let us hope to God that this, rather than a Chaos, may be the issue.

Yesterday was one of the busiest days of the year on the Navy-yard. No less than three vessels were put into the hands of the workmen. Capt. RAMSAY continued swearing in the employes, and the crews of the steamers Adirondack, Wyandotte, and ship Courier were transferred to the receiving-ship North Carolina. The Courier and Wyandotte leaf rather badly. The steamer Ella, recently purchased by the Government, returned to the yard. There are still nearly 4,000 men employed in the different shops. The following formidable fleet is now in the stream: North Carolina, 84 guns; Savannah, 24 guns; Roanoke, Mercedita, Magnolia, Dwight, Norwich, Hambleton, Vixen, Courier, Adirondack and Dumbarton (building), Supply, Massachusetts, Rockaway, Wyandotte, Ella and Semmes. Workmen are engaged on all these vessels, which are in the various stages of preparation for service.

A Court-martial convened on Governor's Island on Monday for the trial of such prisoners as may be brought before it. There is no record of a commissioned officer being on the list. The cases reported at the late Courts have been all disposed of.

A large body of regular navy sailors, recruited in the New-England States, passed through this City on Sunday morning en route to the Mississippi, where they are first to reinforce the crews of the Tyler, Essex and Queen of the West, whose recent engagement with the ram Arkansas has been announced, and then to be distributed among other vessels. The men were regular mariners, and accompanied by three officers of the United States navy.

Letters, papers and parcels for all the vessels of the Rebel division of the blockade fleet, will be forwarded from the Brooklyn Navy-yard in the supply steamer Massachusetts to-day.

The executive officer of the Brooklyn Marine Barracks, Captain HERVESON, has been ordered on local recruiting service, and is to be replaced in command by Capt. D. M. COURS, one of the most accomplished officers in the United States Corp of Marines. Capt. COURS has been selected for this duty on account of his peculiar fitness for administrative business.

The United States brig-of-war Bainbridge sailed from the Navy-Yard on Monday with sealed orders. She has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired since her return to this port. The Bainbridge is the smallest vessel in the regular navy, being only 259 tons burden. The R. R. Cuyler having been again catched up sailed from Boston on Saturday with sealed orders. The steam gunboat Rhode Island left the same port on Monday, with the mails and dispatches for Port Royal.

The New Ironsides' engines were tried on Saturday at Philadelphia, with very satisfactory results. She has two horizontal direct-acting engines, with cylinders 60 inches in diameter and 30 inches stroke. She has four horizontal tubular boilers, each being 11 feet front, 11 feet deep and 11 feet high, of 1,600 horse-power. She will have 30 officers, and an armament of 18 guns. These are the only particulars about this much-talked-of vessel which have not hitherto been published.

The New-Ironsides.

From the Philadelphia Ledger, Aug. 4.

The iron-clad frigate is so far advanced that she will make a trial trip on Monday next, after which she will be taken to the Navy-yard and dismantled before proceeding to sea. On Saturday the engines of the frigate were in operation, and worked satisfactorily. Her machinery is of great power, consisting of two horizontal direct acting engines, with cylinders of fifty inches diameter and thirty inches stroke, intended to make eighty-five revolutions per minute, and to drive a brass four-bladed propeller, of thirteen feet diameter and eighteen feet pitch. The boilers are four in number, known as horizontal tubular, each being seventeen feet front, eleven feet deep and eleven feet high, of a collective force of 1,600 horses. Though the boilers and machinery and coal-bunkers occupy considerable space, there is ample room for officers' quarters and the accommodation of the crew. The New-Ironsides has but three decks—the orlop-deck, in consequence of the light draft of the frigate, being dispensed with. On the spar-deck the circles have been laid for the pivot guns, and the joiners' work on it is in a very forward state. A number of joiners are at work on the gun-deck, fitting up the Captain's quarters, which are spacious and well-lighted. When furnished, they will present a handsome appearance. No other officer is allowed a cabin on this deck, but all, from the Lieutenant down, are quartered on the berth-deck. The cabins of these, with the ward-rooms, are all completed and ready for occupancy. The total number of officers on board the Ironsides is about thirty. These include the Commander, Lieutenants, Masters, Surgeons, Chaplain, Engineers, Lieutenant of Marines, Midshipmen, Master's Mates, Paymaster and Clerk, Boatswain, Gunner and Carpenter. Though the Ironsides is of the same tonnage as the Wabash, she will not carry as large a crew, in consequence of her being dismantled before going out. The armament of the frigate, consisting of sixteen 11-inch Dahlgren guns on the gun-deck, and two 200-pounder Parrot guns on the spar-deck, has been received at the yard, and will be put on board as soon as the iron carriages are ready. The work on the outside of the vessel is so nearly completed, that a few days will be sufficient to finish it. This week she will receive her coal and ordnance stores.

Physical Education in Amherst College.

Mr. E. HITCHCOCK, Jr., Professor of Physical Education and Hygiene, in Amherst College, (Mass.,) has made his first annual report. There have been forty-four cases of sickness in the College during the year, four of which were the direct result of injuries received in the gymnasium. None of these, however, were of a serious character. In his report, Prof. HITCHCOCK says:

"I am agreeably surprised that the interest has been kept up during the year in this department, as it certainly has. And I speak from knowledge on the subject when I say that there is no more disposition to neglect the duties of this department than there is of any other of the exercises of college. During the whole year not a student has been entirely excused from the required exercises of the gymnasium on account of severe harmonic and another on account of a rupture. A few others have been excused a part of the time because boarding two or three in one case four—miles from college, or of doing work about college, so that they could not afford the time required for the exercise. I have always insisted upon order and obedience to rules, and I have had but little difficulty in securing them. During a portion of the exercise, I felt upon the Captains the necessity of introducing playful exercises, such as running in obvious situations, staying college [illegible] by boatswains and assignment; but it seems desirable to me that a portion of the animal spirits should be worked off inside the stone walls of the gymnasium, under the eye of a college officer, rather than out of doors, wandering night and day, and in no instance did any Captain had the slightest difficulty in bringing his men into line at the word of command.

"The exercise with muskets is one which does not meet with much favor among the students. I think the reason is, that it was entered into with so much [illegible]

Gen. Hunter on Slavery.

A LETTER TO REV. DR. TYNG.

The following is a copy of Gen. HUNTER's reply to the inquiries of the President of the National Freedmen's Association:

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE SOUTH, HILTON HEAD, PORT ROYAL, S. C., July 17, 1862.

Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, President of the National Freedmen's Relief Association, New-York City:

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication, dated June 2, 1862, expressing to me the approval of my course in regard to the freed slaves of this Department by the important and benevolent Association of which you are President.

Satisfied of having attempted in the absence of instructions, to do my duty in the matter according to the best lights of my judgment and a long experience, every assurance of sympathy from men whose characters I esteem ingratiating, and enables me to wait with more patience for those inscrutable days which are to give a policy on the Slavery question to the Government.

It is my only fear that the lesson may not be understood, and acted upon until read in characters of blood at the fireside of every Northern family. To attain wisdom we must suffer, but that wisdom on the Slavery question must finally be obtained, is my sustaining faith.

Our people are not dull of comprehension to regard to matters about which free play is given to their common sense. When a fire is spreading through a block of houses, they do not hesitate to tumble down an intermediate house to save the remainder of the block. When the plague comes so infectious that the district is quarantined, and every resource of science and industry set forth, to rid the locality of its presence. The builders of health are by no means content to mount guard over each infected house, and see that the vested interests of pestilence are protected. "Break open doors, if they do not open," is the order on these occasions. Let in fresh air and sunlight; let purity replace corruption."

This is written, not politically, but according to my profession as the military sense. Looking forward, there seems as a possibility daily and constantly of a peace which shall be nothing but an armistice, with every advantage secured to the rebellion. Nothing can give us permanent peace but a successful prosecution of the war, with every weapon and energy at our command, to its logical and legitimate conclusion. The fomenting cause of the rebellion must be stated; the ax must be laid to the root of the upas tree which has raised down such bitter fruit upon our country, before anything like a permanent peace can be justly hoped.

Already I see signs in many influential quarters, heretofore opposed to my views, in favor of arming the blacks, of a change of sentiment. Our recent disasters before Richmond have served to illuminate many minds.

To speak of using the negroes merely for throwing up intrenchments is a step in the right direction, though far short of what must be the end. It has the advantage, however, of making the further and final steps necessary; for men working in face of the enemy must have arms with which to protect themselves if suddenly attacked.

On the whole, there is much reason to be satisfied with the progress made by public sentiment, considering how deeply-rooted were the prejudices to be overcome, the general failure of the nation to realize at first the proportions of the war, and the impunity still extended to those Northern traitors who are the sinderers of the Government by means of fraudulent army and navy contracts, on the one hand, while using every energy of tongue and pen to excite discontent with our Government and sympathy with the more candid and courageous traitors of the South who are in arms against us.

In conclusion, it may not be inappropriate to say that in transmitting the approval of the National Freedman's Relief Association of my course, you were—doubtless unconsciously—indicating views which your own earnest eloquence had no slight share in maturing. Though without the pleasure of your personal acquaintance, I was, during a year, a member of your congregation, and take this opportunity of gratefully acknowledging my indebtedness to your teachings.

Your letter would have been earlier answered, had not pressing duties too fully occupied my time.

Believe me, Sir, very truly, your obliged and obedient servant, D. HUNTER.

P. S.—None of the carefully fostered delusions by which Slavery has sustained itself at the North, is more absurd than the bugbear of "a general migration of negroes to the North," as a necessary sequence of emancipation. So far is this from being the fact, that although it is well known that I give passes North to all negroes asking them, not more than a dozen have applied to me for such passes since my arrival here, their local attachment being apparently much stronger then with the white race. My experience leads me to believe that the exact reverse of the received opinion on this subject would form the rule, and that nearly if not quite all the negroes of the North would migrate South whenever they shall be at liberty to do so without fear of the auction-block.

Sincerely, D. H.

American Sympathy with Suffering Europe.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

"A worker" writes to ask you if you do not "think the article in Sunday's TIMES, headed 'American Intervention in Foreign Affairs no Longer Avoidable,' a very unjust and cruel taunt to the starving working people of England." Allow me to say I, at least, do not. That the working people of England, or the non-working people, either, for that matter, should be threatened with starvation, is a condition of things that could only excite an emotion in any American mind—a feeling of profound commiseration that would make itself manifest practically in works. We are profoundly sorry that England should want cotton or anything else and be unable to obtain it, we are more sorry still that in consequence of that want her industrious working people should suffer. But for all that I do not conceive that in this instance the United States is responsible for either her wants or her sufferings. Had a blight fallen upon the cotton plant at any time, and cut off the crop, the result would have been the same. Would she then have held us accountable because her mills stood idle, and the workmen begged through her streets for bread? Certainly a more deadly blight than civil war could not fall upon a country. God knows we never sought it. It came like a pestilence or a famine; we were forced to accept it with bravery and resignation, as we should have received any other national affliction. England is not the only sufferer by it. Our young men are dying by thousands on bloody fields, the wail of widows and orphans goes up to Heaven from every hearth in the land. While we are struggling for life England is perhaps losing money, but by what measure is our loss to be estimated? Perhaps we do not sympathise with her in her distress as we should. But bending over the corpses of a son or a brother who has laid down his life in defence of that heritage which our forefathers left us, the American must be pardoned for forgetting, for the moment, that the shuttles in Manchester mills are flying less swiftly than usual. Far be it from me to laugh or taunt when famine knocks at the door of our English brethren. But our young dead are strewed over more ground than all England covers; let England, then, not blame us if we do not respond to her appeals for help with the same alacrity that we did in more fortunate days. It is in the nature of man to be selfish, and while folding winding sheets for our martyrs, we have, perhaps, been too forgetful of the fact that England wants cotton or food. The former we can not give her; but our barns are bursting, and we can fill her bosom with grain. In turn, will she not remember that we, too, have sufferings, and that the war we are now prosecuting is not a holiday one, sought by us for amusement, and waged to put her workmen upon half pay; but a war forced upon us from which there was no appeal—a war for truth and justice, which we will never abandon until it is prosecuted to the righteous end, though there were ten times England with the whole Continent of Europe to back her demands.

RECRUITING AT THE POST-OFFICE—HOW IT IS DONE.

Postmaster WAKEMAN, whose energy is undoubted, and who ought to score the City-delivery men with a sour-apple-switch, has made a move in the Post-office which will very likely prove of great service to the cause of recruiting. The people employed in the Post-office are, by law, exempt from military duty, but at the suggestion of their wide-awake Chief, they have circulated and signed the following paper:

"We, the undersigned officers, clerks and employes in the New-York Post-office, necessarily exempt from military duty, but deeply anxious to aid our country and support the administration to our utmost extent, in all its efforts to suppress the present wicked and causeless rebellion, and believing it to be vitally important that the regiments now in the field should be immediately filled, are thereby unanimously agreed to pay the same not exceeding in any manner, contribution to the Canteen, to be expended under the direction of the Postmaster and heads of Departments of this office, as a committee for that purpose, in the way they may deem most useful in filling up regiments from the City of New-York now in the field.

NEW-YORK, August, 1862."

Words are good, examples is better, each down to best. Mr. WAKEMAN gave $500, Messrs. TAYLOR, HALLER and SEYMOUR $100 each, and the rest followed in turn, and, of course, to the amount of $5,000.

So far so good. Mr. WAKEMAN then issued the following notice:

POST-OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Aug. 2, 1862.

SIR: Necessarily deprived of the privilege of bearing arms in this period of the nation's peril, you can nevertheless, it is believed, by your personal exertions and influence, do much in aiding and inducing others to devote themselves to this patriotic service.

It is therefore expected that you will, on or before the 15th instant, procure the enlistment of at least one person, and that you will return this circular to this office, with the name of the person enrolled, certified to by some proper recruiting officer.

Yours, &c.,

To Mr. _____,

Enlisted by _____

Name of recruit, _____

Residence, _____

Date of enrollment, _____

I hereby certify that the above-named _____ was recruited by me on the _____ day of _____, 1862.

_____ Recruiting Officer.

The effect of this little note is left to have been magical, and every man in the postal empire will sleep unsteadily until he secures his man.

Now let the Custom-house, the Assay-office, and the half dozen other Governmental depots follow Mr. WAKEMAN's most excellent move, and something will be done. We trust that the up-town City-delivery men will not be included in the list of recruiting officers, but will be permitted to go on their way in peace.

Cricket Match.

ST. GEORGE VS. EAST NEW-YORK.

These well-known Clubs played a match yesterday at Hoboken, which resulted, after a very close contest, in favor of St. George.

The heat of the weather prevented the fielding of some of the players on each side from being very sharp, and in consequence, G. WILLIS and HUNTER were missed several times, and BOOKER by the same gentlemen who subsequently caught him out.

St. George went first to the wickets—WILLIS, CRANSTON and BOOKER playing remarkably well for their scores. In WILLIS's score was a 5, in CRANSTON's a 4, 3 and 2; in BOOKER's a 4 and 2. But young WILLIS surpassed every one by the cricketing play, and that against the best rate bowling of ANDREWS, CREIGHTON and MARSH. His figures were 2 4s, 4 3s, 2 2s and 15 1s, HAMMERSLEY playing well for a 13 and HOWLAND.

HUNSON led off with some of his well-known pretty play for East New-York, and with NORRIS and STOKES, some run the score up, the latter's 33 comprised four 3s, three 2s, and singles, and WILLIS made by dashing cricketing play, and he was the last man put out. In fielding all were fair, as usual, Mr. HUNSON heading 4s and 3s; and MARSH a 4. Mr. GIBBS' fast bowling was very good; and the fielding of REMSON, CRANSTON, VAN BUREN and WALLER, A. J. WILLIS's bowling would have been more effective if the field had been better placed for it. It will be seen that but one run was made by the last four wickets, and St. George only gained the victory by three runs.

There were not a great many persons on the ground; the cricketers enjoyed a fine dinner in the Club-house between the innings, which was served up in Mr. WALLER's best style, to the satisfaction of all.

The following is the score:

ST. GEORGE'S CLUB.	Runs.	EAST NEW-YORK CLUB.	Runs.
Waller, b. Marsh	11	Hudson, c. Waller, b. Gibbs	36
F. Robinson, c. Stokes, b. Andrews	0	Morris, c. Creighton, b. Gibbs	1

MATCHES TO BE PLAYED BY THE ST. GEORGE'S CLUB.

Aug. 13—At Hoboken, against Queens County Club, with Hammond, Sadler, Hudson, Hampshire and Holley.

Aug. 21—At Boston, against the Boston Club.

Sept. 10 and 11—At Hoboken, against Military of Canada.

Sept. 12 and 13—At Hoboken, against Montreal Club.

Sept. 25—At Philadelphia, against Philadelphia Club.

DAYS NOT NAMED—At Bedford, against Willow Club; at Hoboken, Benefit Match for E. & H. WILLIS.

Base Ball.

MUTUAL VS. GOTHAM.

The return match between the second nines of these clubs took place yesterday afternoon, at Hoboken. It resulted in another victory for the Mutuals—the score standing Mutual, 39; Gotham, 17.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Last Thursday, five convalescent soldiers from the "Ladies' Home," went down town in a carriage to take a look at our large stores, &c. At noon they stopped in front of TAYLOR's saloon. Charmed with its appearance they at once decided to dine there. After they had fared sumptuously, as you always can at TAYLOR's, they asked the waiter for tickets. "We cannot give you any," said the waiter; "we cannot charge you, who have been fighting the battles of our country, and who have been wounded while nobly defending our dear old flag; I say, we cannot charge you anything for your dinners." Not satisfied with this, they went to the cashier and asked: "How much do you want? We wish to pay for our dinners and the waiter refused to give us tickets." "Did he tell you the reason?" inquired the cashier. "Yes, Sir," responded one of the number; "he says you will not charge a soldier anything for his dinner, after he has undergone the hardships to which a soldier is exposed." "Well, is not that a good reason?" said the cashier. These noble fellows, who were very much affected by the kind and wholly unexpected treatment, desire, through this medium, to thank Messrs. TAYLOR & SON for the hospitality received at their saloon. W. R. M.

The Accident on the Thomas E. Hulse—The Officers not Responsible.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR: You will please contradict the statement made in your paper of yesterday, which asserted that the Thomas Hulse ran into a small boat and drowned a boy. The facts are these: The small boat to which you refer, was made fast to the stern of our boat, without the knowledge of any one on board. Every effort was made to save the boy, but in vain. You will please insert this, and oblige

GEORGE ANNOTT, Captain.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S SALE.—The cargo of the prize steamer Circassian, was, by order of JAMES C. CLARK, United States Marshal, for the Southern District of Florida, sold at auction at 11 A. M. yesterday, at the Union Stores of Wade & Gould, Brooklyn, near the Hamilton-avenue Ferry. The sale was conducted by BURNHAM, JONES & CO., under the direction of the Marshal. The Circassian was captured in the vicinity of Havana, which port she claimed as her destination, by the United States gunboat Somerset. The papers found on board distinctly proved that her cargo was intended for the port of New-Orleans, then under strict blockade, and it was consequently condemned at Key West by Judge MARVIN, but transferred to New-York as the latter was considered to be much the better market for the goods. The schedule of articles sold is as follows:

464 hhds. claret wine, $16 ⅌ hhd.; 9 do. do., $9 50 do.; 30 do. do., Usage, $23 50; 100 half pipes Eastern wine, $12 half pipe; 18 hhds. claret wine, $23 hhd.; 20 casks vinegar, $9 cask; 53 hhds. claret wine, $25 50 hhd.; 40 half hhds. do., $17 00 half hhd.; 11 hhds. do., $20 hhd.; 20 half hhds. do., $16 half hhd.; 12 hhds. do., $40 do.; 20 half hhds. do., $20 hf. hhd.; 50 hhds. claret wine, $41 do.; 6 hhds. claret wine, $4 50 do.; 43 cases claret wine, Medoc, $8 00; 11 cases white wine, $7 do.; 8 do. do., $8 25 do.; 8 do. claret wine, large, 90 do.; 16 do. do., small, $3 25 do.; 1 case claret wine, 3 do.; 11 cases superior Cognac brandy, $16 do.; 16 do. do. Genevo gin in stock, $8 75 do.; 2 do. quart Moselle, $9 75 do.; 1,000 do. claret, $8 75 to $3 75 do.; 80 do. fine Pekoe Congou Tea, 44c.; 426 cases Olive Oil, park glass bottles $7 50 case; 100 do. white do. $3 15 do.; 64 do. Italian do. $3 10 do.; 120 do. do. $7 00; 400 do. do. $5 do.; 4 cases Bologna sausages 170, net each 20c. lb.; 1 do. preserved fruit, 4 pots each $4 50 net; 3 do. green peas 100½, 8lb. cans, 15 do. Paste Truffles 100½, 7lb. do., 10 do. Mushroom in oil 50½, 8lb. do.; 155 cases Sardines Cannes 100⅝ lb, 40 do. do. Changuieur 50½, 26½c. box; 107 do. 25½c. do.; 372 do. 26c. 25½c.; 100 cases Brandy Fruits, 12 jars, 94 $7½ case; 100 fruits in own juice 16½c. do. 41c. 6½c. do.; 50 cases fruit in own juice, 12 jars, $8 50 do.; 20 do., 18½ jars, $3½ do.; 50 cases prunes 12 glass, 24½ jars, 14c. lb.; 10 do., 12 jars, 12½c. lb.; 29 cases green peas, 120 each, 20½c. case; 1 case sausage truffles, 6lb. can; 2 cases of sagestuffs 60 apiece.

In addition to the above was sold a large assortment of drugs, &c., of which a considerable portion was purchased by the Marshal and Government accounts.

The sale comprised only 18,861 one-half of the cargo, being confined to the articles less easily preserved in good condition.

A COLORED CONFIDENCE SWINDLER—AN EMPHATIC ORIGINAL.—For nearly twelve years past ELIZA BANKS, an honest and respectable woman, who was formerly a slave, has faithfully served a family living at No. 316 West Thirtieth-street. In November, 1860 Eliza made the acquaintance of MARGRET W. EASTON, a portress and with a Bleecker-street bank book. Being in the employ of a family of wealth, Eliza thought to be honest as well as talented. Wishing to confer good with her friends down in Dixie, Eliza employed EASTON to write some letters for her. By this means he gained her confidence. At the time Eliza's employer was in Europe, and accordingly gave EASTON $100, to deposit for her, in the Manhattan Savings Bank. He acted as honest part for a time, but eventually appropriated money to his own use which had been given him to deposit; and not only that, but he drew from the bank what he had already deposited for Eliza. He kept possession of her bank-book all the time, and struck it up for self-support. She worked and recently ascertained that EASTON has remanded over $700 of her money. In a similar manner EASTON has swindled with Cassina Sunday, another colored woman, living at No. 40 West Twenty-fourth-street, and the total of her losses amounts to some over hundred the total of Eliza. His assured possession of the money on the promise of depositing it in the Seventh Ward Greenwich Savings Bank, instead of which he appropriated it to his own use. It is further charged that EASTON obtained $100 in cash from a colored man, with which he intended to buy land in the country on speculation, and they were to share alike the profits. But, as in the other cases, the profits were all in EASTON's favor, and the man has never been able to recover his money. The parties mentioned came to the knowledge of Officer LAYNE, of the Twentieth Ward, and after practicing a bit of strategy he succeeded in arresting EASTON at his lodgings on Monday morning. Contrary to the custom of most criminals, EASTON confessed his crimes to Officer LAYNE, and stated what was he had made of the money so cruelly taken from his victims. He had invested in real estate in Brooklyn, and exhibited deeds for the property purchased. To what extent this man has swindled the ignorant and too-confiding blacks cannot now be known, but it is supposed he has victimized many others. Should there be such, they would do well to call on Inspector CARPENTER at Police headquarters, or Capt. WILLIS, of the Twentieth Precinct. EASTON was taken before Justice KELLY and committed for examination.

BE CAREFUL OF YOUR POSTAGE STAMPS.—In the latest number of his United States Mail, Col. MORANCY says: "We have been surprised to see how careless the merchants, professional men and others in large cities are in the custody of postage stamps. In many instances, large quantities are placed in exposed situations, and within reach of any one employed about the premises. We know that, heretofore, the loss in this way has been, in many instances considerable; but now that these stamps can be used in lieu of money for the purchase of anything, the temptation to embezzle them is doubled, and it will be well for business men to look sharp to their interests in this respect. They would find it to pay, no doubt, to keep a daily and weekly stamp account, showing how many are bought and how many are used. In reference to foreign letters, upon which stamps are placed by the writers in prepayment of postage, there can be no doubt that they are often removed before being dropped in the Post-office, and the letters where prepayment is optional, sent off unpaid, to the great prejudice, probably, of the correspondent, who is supposed to be adopting this course to avoid the postage tax himself. Numerous cases of this kind have come to light in this and other large cities, and increased care should be exercised, as the facilities and inducements to this species of dishonesty are enhanced."

HEALTH COMMISSIONERS.—Yesterday, with His Honor the Mayor presiding, the Commissioners of Health held a regular meeting. The Health officer reported all things doing well, and all arriving vessels clean. The City Inspector made the same gratifying announcement concerning affairs in the City. He has issued the following order to the Health Wardens: "The hot and sickly season having commenced, renewed vigilance and activity on your part is requested. In addition to your ordinary duties, you are hereby instructed to visit all stables in your district, whether public or private, to examine their drains, and satisfy yourself whether such is ample and complete, as directed by City ordinance upon the subject. The same instructions apply to slaughter-houses, and whenever necessary, you will order the owners or occupants of said buildings to have the same whitewashed, and the gutters sprinkled with lime. You are further instructed to examine into the condition of the culverts in your Ward, and report such as are out of repair, or so choked up as not to allow a free admission of the waters of the gutters into the sewer. A general supervision of all matters pertaining to the health of your District is enjoined on you by this notice." New regulations are also issued to the Police concerning scavengers, who are now restricted in their routes, and made to consult the health of the City.

A COLORED MAN INJURED IN A FIGHT.—HENRY GRAUL, a colored man, employed by the members of Hose Company No. 29, and some men attached to No. 12 Truck, got into an altercation, corner of Thirteenth-street and Fourth-avenue, about 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The noise was heard by officer FERNBALL, of the Fifteenth Ward, who ran to the spot, but he only succeeded in arresting GRAUL and one JAMES FARLEY, the others engaged in the fight making their escape. GRAUL was covered with blood, and an examination showed that he had been terribly beaten on his head and face with an iron wrench or some other heavy weapon. The injured man was conveyed to Bellevue Hospital, but he was refused admittance to that institution; the Police then took him to the Colored Home, where those in charge also refused to admit him. As a last resort, GRAUL was then taken to his own home, No. 29 East Nineteenth-street. There being no evidence to implicate FARLEY in the assault, Justice KELLY discharged him from custody. The assailants, however, are well known, and probably they will be arrested.

BUSINESS IN THE SESSIONS.—At the General Sessions yesterday, Recorder HOFFMAN delivered a brief charge to the Grand Jury upon the ordinary topics, after which they retired. The following parties were arraigned to plead to indictments against them: JAMES BRANAGAN pleaded guilty of burglary in the fourth degree, in breaking into the store, No. 204 Broadway; PERRY BROWN and THOMAS WILSON, accomplices, were convicted of larceny; WASHINGTON BATES pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny, in stealing a quantity of green cloth from a store in Eighth-avenue; WILLIAM BARNES pleaded guilty to an indictment for burglary, in breaking into the office of the New-Haven Steamship Company—an accomplice, JAMES NASH, forfeited his bail, $1,000, and escaped; MEHI MYERS pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny, and JACKSON JOHNSON pleaded guilty of forgery in the fourth degree. All were remanded for sentence.

"INASMUCH AS YE DO IT UNTO ONE OF THESE."—There will be a picnic and festival at Jones' Wood on Wednesday, Aug. 20, under the auspices of the Young Men's Social Union, and a Committee, headed by Hon. GEORGE OPDYKE. There will be good speaking, fine music and other more fleshly adjuncts, all of which, it is presumed, will attract a great and paying crowd. The proceeds, entire, will be appropriated to the relief of the sick and wounded soldiers—such diers who are as deserving of half-dollars as they are of sympathy, and with whom the former are of much more account than the latter. Certain Scriptural propositions, familiar to all readers of the TIMES, are peculiarly appropriate to this connection.

BUSINESS CIRCULARS.—Large quantities of circulars, of various kinds, with a business card of the individual or firm printed on the envelope of each, with only a penny postage stamp affixed, continue to be deposited in the post offices. The aforesaid business card subjects the package to letter postage, and such circulars are held for postage, or, when they find their way into the mails, are returned to the mailing office for proper payment. This should not be forgotten by business men, as it leads to trouble and disappointment. A sealed letter, with a business card on the envelope, is not chargable with extra postage.—Postmaster's U. S. Mail.

FIRE.—About 11 o'clock Monday night, a fire broke out in the photographic gallery of Mr. D. D. DAVIES, on the third floor of premises No. 575 Broadway, the interior of which was nearly destroyed, together with the entire stock and furniture. Loss on stock, $1,000. The animal floor was occupied for offices, and the gut floor by Mr. E. W. BRIGGS as a shoe store. Loss on the first floor, principally by water, about $100. The loss on building, which is owned by Wm. E. Aiken, $500. No insurance.....At 4½ o'clock yesterday morning, a fire was discovered in the dance-house of JOHN HOLLIGAN, No. 164 Water-street. The fire is supposed to have caught from the stove. Loss on building and furniture about $600. No insurance.

ATTEMPT TO PASS COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—GEO. C. SEARS, of WARREN's Hotel, was arrested, yesterday, by Officer WHITNEY, of the Eighth Precinct, for passing a five dollar bill, counterfeit on the Commercial Bank, of Glens's Falls, upon BRYAN F. MOLYNEAUX, of No. 277 Hudson-street. Upon being searched, another bill of the same description was found upon SEARS, as well as eight dollars in good money. SEARS stated to Judge KELLY that the money was given him by a friend, and that he supposed it to be perfectly good money. He knew his friend thought so, too. He was held to bail in the sum of $500, but was told he would be discharged, provided he could show he came honestly by the bills.

A GREAT RAM.—The United States has contracted with Wm. H. Webb, ship-builder, for the construction of an iron steam ram. It will be the largest vessel of the kind in service, and will be covered with armor from plates throughout. The hull will be of solid iron oak; the bow is also to be solid, and armed with iron, with a sharp knife prow, to be half the size of the vessel itself. The ram is to have two revolving turrets, Monitor style. Its total cost will be completed within six months, and a number of others. Mr. WEBB yesterday filed his securities upon the contract, in the office of Hon. GEO. ROSS, the United States District Attorney.

SUPPOSED FATAL ASSAULT.—HENRY NELSON, keeping a store in Canal-street, near Hudson, was arrested by Officer BRADLEY, of the Sixth Ward, charged with having on Saturday night, violently assaulted his wife, ANN. It is alleged that he went home on the head with his fists, and knocked her down against the mantelpiece with so much violence as to reduce her to a state of insensibility. She remained insensible up to yesterday afternoon, and her condition is considered to be extremely critical. The prisoner was committed Nelson without bail.

CRUEL DESERTION.—The Seventeenth Ward Police report that MARY ANN HALL, two years of age, and her infant sister, five weeks old, the children of MICHAEL and MARGARET HALL living at No. [illegible] Cherry-street, were found in a filthy and starving condition, they having been abandoned by their parents. The little sufferers were handed over to the care of Mr. KELLOGG, Superintendent of Out-Door Poor. HALL and his wife are represented as being very dissipated in their habits.

A CASE OF INFANTICIDE.—A male child, apparently but a few hours old, was found floating in the water of Governor's Island by a boatman, Coro

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Whatever from the army of the Potomac is not specially important. A large force of infantry, cavalry and artillery, left camp on Monday night for Malvern Hill, but had not returned at the date of our dispatches. Five hundred and ninety-two more, the remainder of our sick and wounded from Richmond, had arrived, making a total of [illegible] thousand. The employment of contrabands in the construction of earthworks had been commenced by Gen. BARNEY, Chief of Artillery.

Sometimes it is possible to learn the news by going away from home. The Toronto Leader, for instance, lays down a programme of operations for our armies, which may have more truth in it than at first sight seems probable. It gives Gen. MCCLELLAN 115,000 men, Gen. BURNSIDE 23,000, and Gen. POPE 100,000. To meet the latter, the Confederates have at Gordonsville 48,000 or 50,000 men under JACKSON, EWELL, HILL and LONGSTREET; and this is the programme which the Leader sketches for the third grand attempt to capture Richmond: Gen. MCCLELLAN will land forces on the south bank of the river and attack the forts by land, while a vigorous attack will be made on the water by the iron-clad fleet under WILKES. Gen. POPE will advance toward Richmond via Gordonsville, and Gen. BURNSIDE will hold himself in readiness to cooperate with MCCLELLAN or POPE, by landing near Fredericksburgh, and marching "on to Richmond."

There is no later news from Gen. POPE's army this morning. A rumor prevailed in Washington, yesterday, that a force under Col. CLUSERET had met the enemy beyond Fredericksburgh, and had been repulsed, but there seems to have been no foundation for it.

The Secretary of War has issued an order exempting telegraph operators and constructors from military duty, in consideration of the fact that the telegraph lines must be used for military purposes.

A gentleman who has just arrived at Indianapolis from Gen. CURTIS' army at Helena, Arkansas, says that the General has been largely reinforced, and that he is doing a good work. He hangs every guerrilla caught in arms, and takes all the negroes he can find to work on his intrenchments; confiscates every secesh horse he can find, and collects all his forage and fresh beef from the country.

A letter written on board of the United States steamer Florida, and dated St. Simon's Bay, Ga., July 19, states that on the 11th of the same month the United States steamer Darlington, on her way from Port Royal to St. Simon's Bay, came very near being captured by two rebel tugs. She escaped, however, with a mail, a military Governor, and a chaplain for the military and naval station at St. Simon's Island. The incident is notable as indicating the boldness of the rebels in making these forays on the Atlantic Coast, right in the teeth of our blockading fleets.

On Wednesday last, a small mounted party of rebels burned a depot on the railroad line about nine miles beyond Columbia, Tenn., and destroyed a few bales of cotton stored there. A very large amount of cotton is coming forward by wagon from Elk River to Reynold's Station, as the railroad between those points is still interrupted, but will be speedily repaired. The most ample preparations will be made for its future protection, and blockhouses are to be erected at every vulnerable point, while strong guards will be posted along the line.

The total number of rebel prisoners in our hands at the present time is said to be 20,000, an aggregate which vastly exceeds the number of our men held by the Southern authorities.

Following is the important order lately issued by Gen. SHERMAN, at Memphis, regarding the payment of United States money for cotton or other produce:

1. The Quartermaster's Department has been instructed by Gen. SHERMAN to permit no money, gold, silver or Treasury notes, to pass into the hands of Government or Union men for cotton, corn or other produce.

2. The Quartermaster is instructed to receive all cotton that may be purchased after this date, and consign the same North for sale, the proceeds to be held subject to the claim of the owners.

3. Any merchant or other person disturbing money, or the above named articles, after being informed of this Order, will be arrested and tried by the Military Commission, for aiding the enemy.

4. Citizens may procure cotton if they get it by giving their notes to pay for it at the end of the war, at the pleasure of the Government; or if they deem it the safer of the two, with the Quartermaster, to be held in trust for the benefit of the owner.

GENERAL NEWS.

We have received intelligence from Europe, one week later, by the arrival at Cape Race of the Cunard steamship Arabia, which left Liverpool on the 26th, and Queenstown on the 27th ult. The English papers are busy in discussing the present condition of affairs in the United States. The London Times, of course, is disposed to argue that the cause of the loyal States is lost, but all the papers do not take a view quite so discouraging for us. The Army and Navy Gazette, indeed, is candid enough to admit that the position of the Army of the Potomac is much improved since its movement to the James River, and its position much better for operations against Richmond. The question of putting Canada in a state of defence has again been debated in the House of Commons. It was generally contended that there was no danger [illegible]

[illegible] Richmond [illegible] of the troops in Canada [illegible] the Canadians to supply deficiencies. There was rather a general disposition manifested to leave Canada out of the question. The French Admiral DE LA GRAVIERE had embarked for Mexico. The rumor that GARIBALDI has in contemplation another expedition is discredited. Cotton in the Liverpool market had declined ¼d. Ohio, except for American, which was easier, but not quotably lower. Breadstuffs were active and advancing. Provisions quiet and unchanged. Consols closed at 94¼@94¾.

The 11-inch guns intended for the battery of the New Ironsides were hauled from the Navy-yard to the foot of Reed-street, Philadelphia, on Monday, to be hoisted into the vessel. The demands of the Government for the use of this vessel are so urgent, that a number of workmen were engaged upon her on Sunday. Orders have been received to complete her at the earliest possible moment.

The new iron Monitors building at Chester and Wilmington, Del., are progressing quite rapidly, particularly the one at the last-named place. The turrets for these vessels are now under way in this City.

The St. Louis Democrat says: "We learn from one of our St. Louis traders, who visited Huntsville, (Ala.,) and returned early this month, that there had been brought in there about four thousand bales of cotton, purchased at from eight cents in Alabama and Tennessee money, to sixteen cents in gold. The cheaper purchases were made first. A company composed of some Ohio men, named GLASS, MCCLELLAN and DOUTROUS, were heavy buyers. It was with this first, one of whom is a relative of Gen. MITCHEL, that Winchester improvidently and it seems unjustly connected the name of that General. In fact, each cotton was buried in Government wagons; but these wagons would have otherwise come in empty. Gen. MITCHEL was accused of withholding permits to buy, but was accused wrongfully. He gave permits in every case where the application was in good faith. The reason of his issuing these permits at all was for the protection of the planters. These planters had been swindled by these men from Ohio, who had gone out into the country in military uniforms, and told the planters that they had orders to buy all cotton which was not sold at eight cents a pound. These men were arrested, and their cotton seized. Among their baggage were found several officers' coats, handsomely shoulder-strapped, which they had brought with them from Cincinnati, intended for use in helping out their swindle."

A Convention of the wool-growers in the State of Vermont, and, in fact, of all persons interested in the subject, has been called by the State Agricultural Society, to assemble at Rutland on Sept. 9.

The officers and part of the crew of the British schooner Emma, which arrived at Philadelphia as a prize on Saturday, were taken to the office of the Prize Commissioner, on Monday by a marine guard, and examined in reference to the vessel. After their examination they will all be discharged, no doubt, unless some of them belong to the South.

Great excitement was caused in Harrisburgh, Penn., on Monday by the circulation of bogus handbills announcing that Senator LANE, of Kansas, would address the negroes of that place, with the intention of raising a colored regiment.

Gov. EVANS, of Colorado Territory, sent in his message to the Legislative Assembly on July 14. It is entirely confined to the discussion of local topics.

The Montreal Gazette of Thursday states that the Provincial Government are now engaged in organizing an Active Volunteer Militia Force of 30,000 men, to be paid, armed, and clothed; also, that it is their intention, when this is completed, to endeavor to organize another force of 30,000 volunteers, to be armed and clothed only.

The gunboat Wissahicken arrived at the Philadelphia Navy-yard on Monday, for repairs, having left New-Orleans on July 25, and the Southwest Pass on the day succeeding. She received hard usage in passing the forts at Mobile, and subsequently in the actions at Grand Gulf and Vicksburgh.

Though two or three months have elapsed since the prize steamer Bermuda was taken to Philadelphia, the questions growing out of her capture are still before the United States Prize Court. The testimony of her officers and crew was taken by Prize Commissioner FLANDERS, and the counsel for the parties claiming ownership of the vessel had it printed. The Court then allowed the counsel time to send to Europe for certified papers which they desired to obtain, and this has caused the delay. In the meantime, considerable expense is incurred for wharfage, Marshal's fees, hire of watchmen, and other expenses.

The Stock Market was firmer yesterday by 1 ⅌ cent. on the Railways, with more speculative business doing at the advance. The Government credits steady. Exchange, 116; Gold, 114¾ ⅌ cent., as on Monday. The exports of Produce for the week, reported from the Custom-house, are of the value of $4,055,000.

Talk about drafting, exemptions, substitutes, fines, &c., was apparently the sole topic of interest in business circles, yesterday, and trade was much restricted. The movements in Breadstuffs were liberal; prices of Flour advanced 5c.@10c. ⅌ bbl.; Wheat 1c.@2c., and Corn 1c.@1c. ⅌ bushel. Groceries were quiet, as were also Metals, Hides, Candles, Fruits, Laths, Oils, Naval Stores, Seeds, Spices, Cotton and Whalebone. A moderate demand prevailed for Fish, Hay, Hops, Tallow and Whisky, the latter closing at reduced rates. The Freight market was depressed. It was anticipated that the merchants meeting in aid of recruiting, to be held at 1 o'clock P. M., to-day, at the Produce Exchange, would prove a great success. It was stated that Gen. MEAGHER, and Assistant U. S. District-Attorney STEWART L. WOODFORD, would undoubtedly address the assemblage, and that it was most probable Gen. STEDMAN would also attend and speak.

The cattle trade yesterday was even worse than on Monday. There were additions to the number at Forty-fourth-street, making 4,420 fresh cattle for the two days, to which we may add 50 left over from last week, which is 900 more than the fresh offerings here one week ago. The total at all the yards is 4,750—a large supply for one of the hottest weeks of the season. Owners and sellers were united in calling the present the hardest market this Summer. There was a steady decline from the opening of sales on Monday till their close on Tuesday evening, when the yards were barely cleared, the final sales being at very low figures. No one paid over 9c. for the best cattle on Tuesday, and good fat steers were sold at 7½c., and common cattle at 7c., the average for all sold on both days not being over 7½c. to 7¾c. Sheep and lambs are scarce, and worth 50c. ⅌ head more than last week. Good sheep will bring 4½c.@4¾c., and lambs 5c.@7c. ⅌ lb., live weight. There is a good demand for them just now. Live hogs are still in active request at improving rates. The free arrivals find ready purchasers at 4c.@4½c. for fat, corn-fed hogs.

HARD TO PLEASE.—Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS is certainly doing bad work for the Government and the country. His speech on the anniversary of West India emancipation, of which we publish a full synopsis this morning, is the bitterest and most unpatriotic utterance of which he, or any other man outside of the Southern Confederacy, has ever been guilty. He is furious against the policy of the Government on Slavery—though it provides for the emancipation of all the slaves of rebels, and looks to the ultimate extinction of Slavery all over the country. He even talks such nonsense as that "the Government fights to preserve Slavery, and therefore it fights in vain." Certainly, such men are hard to please—so hard that it is not worth while to try to please them at all. The President he calls a turtle, and again he calls him a turtle. Gen. MCCLELLAN he does not call a "traitor," but says "he could not have done more to help traitors." The Cabinet, he says, "cease to believe in him." He looked upon the present war, conducted without a reasonable object, as a total loss of blood and treasure; but we hope he is incorrectly reported as crying out, "Let this Union be dissolved, in God's name, and the corner-stone of a new [illegible]

CONSCRIPTION DRAFTING, AGAIN.

PORTUGUESE!

Who are Exempt and Who are Not ?—The Law and the Facts on the Subject.

The interest and excitement on the subject of drafting in the City, we still per the theatres; and the consequent a perfect shower of commu- nications with reference to the article "Concerning Drafting," published in Monday's TIMES. The anxious inquirers have every variety of query to propound touching who are exempt and who are not exempt, who are liable and who are not, and what duty and law require of them under their several individual, civil, social and physical conditions and circumstances. We don't wonder that a great many are puzzled what to do, for there are both National and State laws to consult on the matter, and the latter especially are complex enough. We shall not attempt to answer all the queries propounded to us, for that would require the subtlety of a Mediæval casuist and the literary roughness of a Schoolman; therefore, we shall reply to as best we can, and if any say they will pretty clearly cover the whole ground.

Let us premise, however, that a great many people are giving themselves unnecessary trouble and anxiety by supposing that the filing of "an affidavit of exemption" before the 15th of August has any immediate connection with the matter of drafting. What is now going on is simply the enrollment of the militia of the State of New-York, in accordance with the Militia Law passed by the last State Legislature on the 22d of April, 1862. This law provides that such an enrollment shall be made "as often as once in every two years;" and the eighth section requires that "a register of enrollment shall be made by the assessors in this act, the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors of each county shall cause to be published, once a week for four weeks previous to the first day of August, a notice that such rolls have been completed and filed as aforesaid; which notice shall also specify that any person who claims that he is, for any reason, exempt from military duty, shall, on or before the fifteenth day of August then next ensuing, file a written statement of such exemption, verified by affidavit, in the office of said Town or City Clerk, or of the County Clerk," &c. It is from the draft is to be made "from the militia of the respective States," and hence it is important that every man should be right on the record. But as time for the commencement of drafting has yet been appointed, it has only been announced that a draft for 300,000 militia will be made; and, furthermore, that if the 300,000 volunteers previously called for are not raised by the 15th of August, a draft to supply the deficit will be entered upon. Before that time, however, Secretary STANTON, as he announced in his order, "will establish regulations for the draft." These, however, will, we presume, be merely of a general character, for the purpose of securing a uniform method throughout all the States, and will in no wise abolish or contravene the rules and regulations governing the militia of the respective States. These rules and regulations for the State of New-York we have already set forth in full in our article "Concerning Drafting." We repeat here merely the leading provisions:

WHO ARE SUBJECT TO MILITARY DUTY.

Section 1. All able-bodied white male citizens, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, residing in this State, and not exempted by the laws of the United States, shall be subject to military duty, excepting:

WHO ARE EXEMPT.

2. All persons in the army or navy or volunteer forces of the United States.

3. Ministers and preachers of the Gospel.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor, members and officers of the Legislature, the Secretary of State, Attorney-General, Comptroller, State Engineer and Surveyor, State Treasurer and clerks and employees in their offices, judicial officers of this State, including justices of the peace, sheriffs, coroners and constables.

5. Persons being of the people called Shakers or Quakers, teachers and students in all colleges and professors, teachers and students in the several academies and common schools.

6. Persons who have been or hereafter shall be regularly and honorably discharged from the army or navy of the United States, in consequence of the performance of military duty, in pursuance of any law of this State, and such firemen as are now exempted by law.

7. Commissioned officers who shall have served as such in the militia of this State, or in any one of the United States, for the space of seven years; but no officer shall be so exempt unless by his resignation after such term of service, duly accepted, or in some other lawful manner he shall have been honorably discharged.

8. Every non-commissioned officer, musician and private of every uniformed company or troop raised, or hereafter to be raised, who has or shall hereafter uniform himself according to the provisions of any law of this State, and who shall have performed service in such company or troop for the space of seven years from the time of his enrolment therein, shall be exempt from military duty, except in cases of war, insurrection or invasion.

9. If any member of such company or troop, who shall have been regularly uniformed and equipped, shall, upon his removal out of the bent of such company or troop, or upon the disbandment thereof, join another uniform company or troop, and uniform and equip himself therefor, and serve in the same, whenever the whole time of his service in such companies or troops, computed together, shall amount to seven years, he shall be exempt from military duty in like manner as if he had served for the whole period in the company or troop in which he was first enrolled.

10. Idiots, lunatics, paupers, habitual drunkards and persons convicted of infamous crimes, shall not be subjected to military duty.

NOTE.—Adjutant-General HILLHOUSE, in his General Order of July 14, has the following with reference to firemen: "Firemen in active service, and those who have served their time as firemen are exempt, when they are enrolled as firemen." The enrolling officer will, therefore, enter such exemption, and note the word "fireman" opposite the names of such persons in the enrollment books.")

PERSONS CLAIMING TO BE EXEMPT TO FILE AFFIDAVIT.

Section 14. All persons claiming exemption shall file a written statement of the same, verified by affidavit, in the office of the town or city clerk, or of the county clerk, in case there be no such town or city clerk, on or before the fifteenth day of August, in default of which such person shall lose the benefit of such exemption, except such as are especially exempt by act of Congress.

NOTE.—The following persons are exempt under the laws of the United States, by reason of imbecility or unsoundness: The Vice-President of the United States, the officers, judicial and executive of the Government of the United States; the members of both houses of Congress and their respective officers; all Custom-house officers, with their clerks; all post-office officers, clerks and assistants; all persons employed in the care and conveyance of the mail of the Post-office of the United States; all inspectors of steam; all pilots; all officers of any vessel of the United States.

Sec. 15. Whenever a general draft of the militia shall be made by order of the Commander-in-Chief of the Military of the United States, such draft shall be performed by lot, to be drawn by the Clerk of the county in which such rolls have been filed, in the presence of the County Judge and Mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any town or ward, upon the requisition of the commanding officer of the regiment, which requisition must specify the number of men required from each regiment, or district, and the time and place of drawing, which shall be not less than ten days after the date of such requisition, or other proper notice to the persons present in the County, who shall be called to witness the proceedings. The Clerk shall deliver the lists pertaining to his county to the officer in charge of the draft, in accordance with the above provisions, may offer a substitute at the time of the enrollment of the drafted military force and shall then produce a substitute, if he shall be an able-bodied man, of the age of twenty-one years and upward, and shall present twenty-one years and himself to all the duties, fines, forfeitures and penalties to which his principal would be liable, and be subject to be personally served, shall be accepted by the commandant of the company of drafted militia to which his principal may belong.

THE MODE OF DRAFTING.

Sec. 16. Whenever the President of the United States shall order a general draft of the militia, it shall be the duty of the Commander-in-Chief of the Military of the United States, such draft to be made by lot, to be drawn by the Clerk of the county in which such rolls have been filed, in the presence of the County Judge and Mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any town or ward, upon the requisition of the commanding officer of the regiment, which requisition must specify the number of men required from each regiment, or district, and the time and place of drawing, which shall be not less than ten days after the date of such requisition, or other proper notice to the persons present in the County, who shall be called to witness the proceedings. The Clerk shall deliver the lists pertaining to his county to the officer in charge of the draft, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Sec. 17. Any person so drafted, in accordance with the above provisions, may offer a substitute at the time of the enrollment of the drafted military force and shall then produce a substitute, if he shall be an able-bodied man, of the age of twenty-one years and upward, and shall present twenty-one years and himself to all the duties, fines, forfeitures and penalties to which his principal would be liable, and be subject to be personally served, shall be accepted by the commandant of the company of drafted militia to which his principal may belong.

[illegible] Recruiting for the old regiments, as well as the new, has received a great impetus during the last few days, and it now seems certain that Massachusetts will fill her quota without drafting.

The call for 300,000 nine months' men is received with the greatest enthusiasm, as showing that the entire energy of the Government and nation is devoted to the speedy suppression of this rebellion.

GOV. SPRAGUE'S COLORED REGIMENT.

State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, PROVIDENCE, Aug. 4, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 35.—The Sixth Regiment, authorized by the Secretary of War, under date Oct. 22, 1861, and orders issued therefor from this Department, No. 162, Dec. 26, 1861, will consist entirely of colored citizens. Enlistment will commence immediately. Camp will be established under direction of Gen. Rodman, who is directed to organize the regiment.

The Quartermaster-General will furnish uniform and equipments as regulation.

Our colored fellow-citizens are reminded that the regiment from this State is the Revolutionary, consisting entirely of colored persons, was commanded by Washington himself, if not superior to any in the army. They constitute a part of the quota from this State, and it is expected that the regiment will show that said spirit in this call.

The Commander-in-Chief will lead them into the field, and will share with them, in common with the patriotic soldiers of the army of the Republic, their fortunes and dangers, and will participate in the glories of their success.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

EDWARD C. MAURAN, Adjutant-General.

GREAT WAR MEETING IN NEW-HAVEN.

NEW-HAVEN, Conn., Tuesday, Aug. 5.

The largest town meeting ever held here took place today.

The vast assembly were obliged to adjourn to the Green, as the north portion of the State-House.

A bounty of one hundred dollars, additional to all other bounties, was voted to all who enlist here.

A resolution that the Selectmen advertise the names of all who have applied for "Disability Certificates," together with the nature of their disease, was unanimously passed.

The greatest enthusiasm was manifested.

RECRUITING IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Recruiting is going on bravely in this city, and the quota of men required by the first call will soon be raised. Gen. PATTERSON, in command of the Home Guards, has called them together to obey the second call, the State Militia law providing that in case of a draft, volunteer troops and companies shall be first detached. This will supply the quota, and the whole force from Philadelphia will probably be raised without a resort to drafting.

WAR MEETING IN ERIE, PA.

ERIE, Monday, Aug. 4.

A mass meeting was held in the Park here, presided over by Hon. C. M. REED, to-day. Over 5,000 people were in attendance, and were addressed by Messrs. A. M. CLAPP, of Buffalo; THOS. COLLIER, of Pittsburgh, and others. Resolutions were adopted pledging Erie County her quota for 1,000,000 men to crush the rebellion, and requesting the County Commissioners to subscribe $30,000 toward paying a bounty to volunteers. Great enthusiasm prevailed.

RECRUITING IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Over five hundred leading merchants have signed the following, and a public meeting is proposed to further increase the list.

"We, the undersigned merchants of Boston, realizing the importance of an immediate response to the call of the Government for an additional military force, hereby agree that the young men in our employment, who may enlist in the service of the United States, shall, on their return from said service, be entitled to the situations they occupied before enlisting."

THE INDIAN EXPEDITION.

Trouble Between the Commanders—Col. Wagner Ordered Under Arrest by Col. Salomon.

HEADQUARTERS INDIAN EXPEDITION, CAMP ON WOLF CREEK, CHEROKEE NATION, July 26, 1862.

To Brig.-Gen. James G. Blunt, Commanding Department of Kansas:

SIR: I have the honor to report that I have arrested Col. Wm. Weer, commanding the "Indian Expedition," and have assumed command. Among the numerous reasons for this step—a few of the chief are as follows: From the day of our first report to him, we have found him a man abusive and violent in his intercourse with his fellow-officers, notoriously intemperate in his habits, entirely disregarding military usages and discipline, always rash in speech, act and orders, refusing to inferior officers and their reports that consideration which is due to an officer of the United States Army. Starting from Cowskin Prairie on the 1st inst., we pushed rapidly forward to the vicinity of Fort Gibson, on the Arkansas River, a distance of one hundred and sixty miles from Fort Scott. No effort was made by him to keep communication open below us. It seems he desired none. We had but twenty-three days' rations on hand. As soon as he reached a position on Grand River, fourteen miles from Fort Gibson, his movements suddenly ceased. We could then have crossed the Arkansas River. But it seemed there was no object to be attained, in his judgment, by such a move. There we lay, entirely idle, from the 9th to the 19th. We had at last reached the point when we had but three days' rations on hand. Something must be done. We were in a barren country, with a large force of the enemy in front of us, a large and now impassable river between us, and no news from our trains or our base of operations for twelve days. What were we to do? Col. Weer called a council of war, at which he stated that the Arkansas River was now impassable to our forces—that a train containing commissary stores had been expected for two days; that three different set of couriers sent out some time previous, had entirely failed to report; that he had received reliable information that a large force of the enemy were marching to our rear on the Verdigris River for the purpose of cutting off our train. Upon this and other information the council of war decided that our safety lay in falling back to some point where we could reopen communication and learn the whereabouts of our train of subsistence. To this decision of the council he at first assented and said that he would arrange with the commanders of brigades the order of march. Subsequently he issued an order putting the command on half rations, declaring that he would not fall back, and [illegible] council of war [illegible] that the man [illegible] his gross intemperate habits [illegible] had produced mutiny or disaffection. In either case the command was imperilled, and a military movement demanded that something be done, and that without delay. I took the only step I believed available to save your troops. I arrested this man, have drawn charges against him, and now hold him subject to your orders. On the morning of the 19th I commenced a retrograde march, and have fallen back with my main force to this point. You will see by General Order, No. 1, herewith forwarded, that I have stationed the First and Second Regiments Indian Home Guards as a corps of observation along the Grand and Verdigris Rivers; also to guard the fords of the Arkansas. Yesterday a courier reached me at Prior Creek with dispatches saying that a commissary train was at Hudson's Crossing, seventy-five miles north of us, waiting for an additional force as an escort. Information also reaches me this morning that Col. WEER, with a force of twelve hundred men passed up the east side of Grand River yesterday for the purpose of cutting off this train. I have sent out strong reconnoitering parties to the east of the river, and if the information proves reliable, will take such further measures as I deem best for its security, and further, simply to hold the country we are now in, and will make no important movement except such as I may deem necessary for the preservation of this command, until I receive specific instructions from you. I send Maj. BURNETT with a small escort to make his way through to you. He will give you more at length the position of this command, their condition, &c. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, F. SALOMON,

Colonel Ninth Wisconsin Volunteers, Commanding Indian Expedition.

Gen. Wagner Ordered Under Arrest by Gen. Blunt.

[illegible]

[illegible] yesterday was both ludicrous and disgraceful. The effect of the order for drafting upon recruiting was very apparent and decidedly beneficial. The recruiting officers of the Empire Brigade all did a big business; and Col. Corr made a fair commencement with his regiment. In the opinion of some officers there will be no necessity of resorting to a draft in this City.

THE DRAFT IN JERSEY CITY.

The order issued by the War Department directing the drafting of 300,000 men has occasioned no unusual commotion among the people of Jersey City. A few have called at the City Clerk's office to find if their names were enrolled and enquire as to their exemption, but aside from this but little interest is manifested. In regard to recruiting, the order for a draft has had no effect in hastening up recruits, no more having been enlisted since it was issued than on any previous day. A number of sixty-odd men have been enlisted in Jersey City under the former call; of these Capt. BURNS has recruited twenty-five men; Capt. SMITH twenty-three men, and Capt. CARNE twenty men. The Thirteenth Regiment now numbers about two hundred and fifty men.

THE JERSEY CITY BOUNTY FUND.

The Common Council Committee on the Bounty Fund for Jersey City, met on Monday, at the Hudson County Bank, in conjunction with a similar Committee from Hudson City, to confer in reference to action taken in reference to paying bounty, and to determine in what proportion the bounty paid by Jersey

[illegible] ly assigned to the charge of nearly all the wounded in Williamsburgh. These were congregated in William and Mary's College and the different churches, or scattered about in private dwellings or shanties.

The rebel wounded, to the number of seven or eight hundred, were nominally under the care of their own surgeons, some of whom were prisoners, and others of whom had come under a flag of truce for the purpose of attending to their wounded; but from neglect, and the destitution of resources, little regard had been paid to their comfort or to the dressing of their wounds. On our arrival the services of the rebel soldiers were at once dispensed with, and they were sent back to Richmond, and the medical officers of our own army were enabled to join their respective commands, to that we had almost the exclusive care of the wounded.

Our work was constant and laborious, a number of [illegible] our surgical experience. Our services afforded the surgeons and [illegible] independent of any surgical aid afforded, were, we believe, useful in a moral point of view, in showing the wounded prisoners that we still regarded them as our fellow-countrymen, and bore toward them no feelings of hate or hostility.

On leaving Williamsburgh we accompanied five hundred of the wounded rebels to Fortress Monroe, leaving one of our number, Dr. DAVID L. ROGERS, in charge of those that remained. Dr. ROGERS is still on duty at Williamsburgh.

We are under great obligations to Drs. TRUMAN and SHEW. They were ceaseless in their activity. Possessing, in addition to medical skill, that energy, system and business capacity, without which the operations of an army must be delayed, by the disorder which, to a greater or less extent, is consequent upon every battle, they marshaled for the disabled, sent those that could be removed in safety to the transports in the river, promptly brought order out of confusion, and yet had time to appreciate our services, and to consult for our comfort.

While admiring their efficiency, we would, through you, offer our thanks to them for the courtesy and kindness which have rendered our excursion to Williamsburgh agreeable, useful and memorable.

Very respectfully, yours,

(Signed,) JAMES R. WOOD, M. D.

NEWS FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, Aug. 1.

Sailed, steamer Uncle Sam, for Panama, with 200 passengers and $1,000,000 in treasure for New-York, and $400,000 for England.

Money, yesterday, was at the usual rates. Exchange on New-York, payable in currency, was at 12 discount, payable in gold, 3@4 premium. Iron metals, groceries and dry goods, prices healthy and advancing. Crushed sugars, 15c.; dulls, 22c.; granules, 23c. @25c. Domestic liquors firm, averaging 50c. Hard coal, $17, Cumberland $27.

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, Aug. 2.

A million and a quarter pounds of coffee were sold yesterday on private terms; held at 25c. for ground. Butter dull. Bleached dulls 22c.; brown dulls 20c. Crushed sugar firm at 15c.

The Sagamore has been chartered for a load of wheat to Liverpool.

The Northern Coast steamer has arrived with 600,300 from Oregon, and $72,000 from British Columbia.

New discoveries were reported in the Carriboo region, also further North.

The Russian Possessions mining news was encouraging, notwithstanding 500 passengers came by the steamer. There were 5,000 miners in the Powder River region, Oregon, the most engaged prospecting. There were stampedes from district to district, extending through Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, to the Frigid Zone, and into the Russian Possessions, reminding us of the excitement in California in 1849.

Pig-Iron, $37.

Capt. MACOMBER, a pioneer merchant, died on the 27th.

Two hundred convicts overpowered the guard, and escaped from the penitentiary last week. The people of the surrounding country pursued and killed fifteen, and wounded many more. All were recaptured but nine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Aug. 4.

GEO. B. ENGLISH, Register of the California Land Office, and JOHN W. WILES, banker, died yesterday.

SYLVESTER MOWRY, recently arrested in Arizona for treason, is now at Fort Yuma awaiting trial. Court-martial will soon commence by order of Gen. WRIGHT.

The question whether the United States legal tender notes shall circulate only at a discount, or gold be placed at a premium corresponding with the New-York rates, engrosses the attention of business communities.

A friendly suit, to determine whether these notes are receivable for State taxes, notwithstanding the Constitution requiring gold, has been presented to the Supreme Court. A decision is soon expected, which will have an important influence on their general circulation, as money (gold) being at present sole only usable currency.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

A Great War Meeting Held at the Capitol.

Important Speech of President Lincoln.

His Declarations in Regard to Gen. McClellan and the Secretary of War.

The Government Urged to Prosecute the War with All Possible Vigor.

Traitors in the Departments Should be Weeded Out.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

The Union meeting was held at the east front of the Capitol this afternoon. It was preceded by the ringing of bells, the firing of cannon, and music from the Marine Band. The portico and platform were occupied by many ladies, military, civil and naval officers of distinction.

The House of Representatives presided, with thirty-three Vice-Presidents and twenty-two Secretaries.

The prayer by Rev. Dr. C. Shaw, the patriotic resolutions were read by EDWARD JOHNSON, the Secretary of the Treasury.

Resolved, That we, residents of the District of Columbia, not having among our number citizens of any portion of the country, regard the dismemberment of the Union as an event not to be contemplated in any contingency whatever, it being forbidden alike by the geographical, commercial, social and political conditions—by our domestic and foreign interests—by the ties which the world would attach to us, did we consent to the severance, and the unchallenged and unchallengeable precedent we would establish for the dismemberment of the Union, and the most accursed blood that has made far its dictates; by the memory of our living and the memories of the dead; we do deliberately and voluntarily declare that, rather than submit to dismemberment, we would prosecute the present war until the forms and titles should be restored to union. (Applause.) Our fields should be devastated, and we and all that are dear to us should have perished with our possessions. Let the Union be preserved, or the country made a desert. (Applause.)

Resolved, That we have not a doubt that almost the entire population of the loyal States are actuated by the same sentiments which we express, and that if there is at the present time any hesitation manifested by them in devoting themselves or their property to the cause of their country, it is owing solely to their misgivings as to the prosecution of the war—(Applause, and half of "Good")—to an apprehension that there is, on the part of those who direct our military operations, whether in the Cabinet or in the field, a want of resolution and determination to employ, to the extent necessary, overbearingly, the full power of the nation, which the foe and know to be overwhelming.

Resolved, That profoundly convinced as we are that such is the true cause of the hesitation, we deem it the duty of the President, and therefore most respectfully but earnestly urge upon him, to adopt without delay the measures of caution, assuring to the people that he is resolved to prosecute the war on a scale limited only by the resources of the country; and we hail with joy the recent order directing the immediate draft of a large substantial force, as cheering evidence of such purpose. (Applause.)

Resolved, That while there are among us differences of opinion with minor questions of policy in the prosecution of the war, we are all agreed that the Union, attained should be the base which will bear with the good crushing weight upon those in rebellion, whether in arms or not. (Applause.)

Resolved, That we command to our men that the leaders in the rebellion will never sincerely return to their allegiance to the Union, or quietly submit to the supremacy of opinion that they should be regarded as traitors to their country, who are to be treated as such, by forfeiture of whatever character—political, civil or military—of life or exemption from the extreme penalty of treason, and cries of "Good.")

Resolved, That, in our judgment, whatever may be opinion within the rebellious States, manifestly should be against the loyalty of the inhabitants, and those who have shown their unquestioned adhesion to the cause of the Union, should either be placed under restraint or compelled to go beyond the lines, while their effects should be taken from them, and, so far as available, applied to the use of the army. (Applause.)

Resolved, That the National Capital is eminently loyal, that when treason should be instantly detected and punished, and that the most vigilant measures should be adopted by the proper authorities without delay, to detection and arrest the traitors who infest the District, and that they should be compelled either to establish, in the most unquestionable manner, their fidelity to the Government, or be deprived of its protection.

Resolved, That we heartily approve of the act of Congress providing for the confiscation of property of traitors, and declaring that slaves of such traitors shall take refuge within our lines, and that we deem it in the power of the President, in the exercise of his ability, to give effect to the provisions of that act, and emphatically that he take the most efficient means to see that its course shall not be thwarted or given over by officers who may be adverse thereto. (Applause.)

Resolved, That the Federal Government being the only instrumentality through which the will of the nation can be made effective, that the Government must be sustained, whatever Administration may, for the time being, be in power, and whatever may be the policy within the limits of the Constitution which it may adopt, that he who refused to his support because of his disapproval of some particular measure and policy, is false to his obligations to the country.

Resolved—But this truth has peculiar force at the present time, when the Government is struggling for its very existence; and that for ourselves, confident as we are in the wisdom and patriotism of the President and members of the Cabinet, we pledge to them our earnest, cordial and determined support in the great work of defending and preserving the Union in which are centered all our hopes, and to the preservation of which we solemnly devote all that we have and are. (Applause.)

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to make ample provision for the families of all citizens of this District who are now joining military service of the country, and who may hereafter enter it during the continuance of the war.

The entire series of resolutions were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted.

Mr. CHENOWETH, Register of the Treasury, made a stirring opening speech, in the course of which he said the causes of the gospel are in the past. Hostilities for compromise and negotiation, delay and timid counsels, are words that belong to the past. The time has come to find out, seize and dispose of every traitor in this country, especially in this city. ("Good, good.") We have suffered men, whose hearts were full of treason, to breathe the same air with us, to sit at our tables, and to fill the offices of Government, and who have availed themselves of the opportunity they enjoy to give information to the enemy. (Cries of "Put them out," "Hang them.") When the war broke out every one of the traitors, who had a speck of honor, removed himself, but those whose natures qualified them for pimps and spies remained. We cannot expect military Governors or Provost-Marshals to look after them. We must do it ourselves. He gave, as an instance, a man who was turned out of office more than a year ago, on the suspicion of disloyalty. This man went to Maryland, was there arrested, and conducted as a military prisoner, but by a mistaken policy, was released, and is now in a public office here, where he can best know the movements of the army, and their sanitary condition.

VOICE—What's his name?

Mr. CHENOWETH replied that he could give it here, but preferred to use it in such a way, privately, as to have the man removed. After some encouraging words as to the prospect of crushing the rebellion, he said: that man is a patriot who supports the Government, and in conclusion, paid a high compliment to the President and the Cabinet.

He was frequently interrupted by applause.

Three cheers were given for the President, and after the band had played "Hail to the Chief," the President, in response to impatient calls, advanced to the front of the platform and spoke as follows:

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I believe there is no precedent for my appearing before you on this occasion, (applause) but it is also true that there is no precedent for your being here yourselves, (applause and laughter;) and I offer, in justification of myself and of you, that, upon examination, I have found nothing in the Constitution against. (Renewed applause.) I, however, have an impression that there are younger gentlemen who will entertain you better, (voices—"No, no; none can do better than yourself. Go on;") and better address your understanding, than I will or could, and therefore, I propose both details, you a moment longer. (Cries—"Go on! Tar and feather the rebels!")

I am very little inclined on my occasion to say anything unless I hope to produce some good by it. (A voice—"You do that; go on.") The only thing I think of just now not likely to be better said by some one else, is a matter to which we have heard some other persons allused for what I did myself. (Voices—"What is it?") There has been a very wide-spread attempt to have a quarrel between Gen. McCLELLAN and the Secretary of War. I know, I suppose I perceive that anyone to observe, at least, these two gentlemen are not nearly so fond to the general as some gentlemen are for their friends. (Voices of "Good.") Gen. McCLELLAN's attitude is such that, in the very solicitude of his nature, he cannot but wish to be successful, and I hope he will—and the Secretary of War is precisely the same position. If the military commanders in the field cannot be successful, not only the Secretary of War, but myself for the time being the master of them both, cannot be but failures. (Laughter and applause.) I know Gen. McCLELLAN wishes to be successful, and I know he does not wish it any more than the Secretary of War for him, and both of them together no more than I wish it. (Applause and cries of "Good.") Sometimes we have a dispute about how many men Gen. McCLELLAN has had, and those who would disparage him say that he has had a very large number, and those who would disparage the Secretary of War insist that Gen. McCLELLAN has had a very small number. The basis for this is, there is charge a wide difference, and on this occasion, perhaps, a wider was between the grand Mother McClellan's sells and the men actually at the army, and those who would disparage him talk of the grand total on paper, and those who would disparage the Secretary of War talk of those at present fit for duty. Gen. McCLELLAN has sometimes asked for things the Secretary of War did not give him. Gen. McCLELLAN is not to blame for asking what he wanted and needed, and the Secretary of War is not to blame for not giving when he had none to give. (Applause, laughter, and cries of "Good, good.") And I say here, as far as I know, the Secretary of War has withheld no one thing at any time in my power to give him. [Wild applause, and a voice—"Give him enough now!"] I have no accusation against him. I believe he is a brave and able man, (applause,) and I stand here, as justice requires me to do, to take upon myself what has been charged on the Secretary of War, as withholding from him.

I have talked longer than I expected to do, (cries of "No, no—go on,") and now I avail myself of my privilege of saying no more.

SPEECH OF EX-GOV. BOUTWELL.

Ex-Gov. BOUTWELL, Commissioner of the Internal Revenue, when he announced he came from Massachusetts, said what they proposed to do in this war was to carry it on in sunshine and storm against all odds on this side of the water or the other. They rallied under this banner not for this generation alone, nor for this century, but for all generations and centuries on this side of the Atlantic, until our flag shall wave unpolluted from the great lakes of the North to the Gulf of Mexico; and they meant to take the treasure, even the last dollar, if that heart's blood of the Old Commonwealth, are that heart, with freedom on their lips and prayers in their hearts, shall accomplish what they have undertaken. (Applause.) If, to-night, news of disaster should come, every heart, though disposed for the moment, would be nerved for renewed efforts in the cause of liberty and humanity. The gentleman (CHENOWETH) who preceded him said he proposed to serve out the traitors. He would have say, if it had not been for Slavery, there would have been no treason, and when Slavery shall cease to exist, there will be no traitors. (Applause, and cries of "Good.")

The blessing of Heaven is followed with freedom in the end. There will be no peace until, throughout the length and breadth of this Republic, the cry shall come up—Slavery, Slavery has ceased. How and when? These are questions to be submitted to the President and Cabinet. The faster he and they march on, Slavery will cease to that extent. He had heard rebels of rebs from Maine, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio, Cincinnati, and elsewhere. What is the difficulty? How is it to be remedied? If South Carolina and Florida were declared free by the President, the blacks would flock there from the North. Then the competition of labor between the White and black man in the North would cease from this cause. The North would be alone in the possession of free white men, and the regions of cotton and rice fields for the colored race would become their places of abode. Some say, reconstruct the old Union with Slavery. But do you suppose the slaves are going to remain in the South. No, they will escape by millions only to the North. Do you say, you will return them. You cannot do it. Humanity is against it. You have to take your choice, either abolish Slavery in the seceded States, and require thither the negroes from the North, or make the North to be overrun with fugitives from the South. Say to those there is territory you may have solely for your own use, and give the white men of the North the unrestricted enjoyment of their rights. While he (BOUTWELL) would, on the basis of the President's proposition, give compensation to masters in loyal States, he would also compensate those who might be found loyal in the seceded States, but never should the treasury of the nation be opened to compensate rebels. In the course of his remarks he said: Jeff. Davis and his brother conspirators did not abolish the Government until the Government was not strong enough to protect Slavery, to which institution institution all our evils were chargeable. To save the Government, Slavery must die—go by the board. The war will last as long as Slavery outlives you take it by the throat. He had believed to the Democratic Party, and now wished to pay a tribute to it in its ruin and disgrace. It was a party of courage undiscouraged, in times of danger, and now let the people borrow its courage, although he knew of nothing else they could borrow with safety. If you declare with courage that Slavery shall cease, let this be the war cry. (Applause and music.)

SPEECH OF MR. SWETT, OF ILLINOIS.

Mr. LEONARD SWETT, of Illinois, in the course of his remarks, spoke of what that great State has done, and of her resolution to still further contribute of her immense resources to forever crush the rebellion. He congratulated his listeners on the earnest acts of the President and Cabinet, indicating a stern purpose with this view. The Scriptures say where the treasure is, there the hearts will be also. But he wanted the Government to say to the traitors in Washington, where your hearts are there Your ladies should be alone. (Laughter.) And whenever a case up a woman is found in this city whose heart is in Richmond he wanted the Government to furnish the means of transportation thither. (Applause, and cries of "Good.") Our trust is in justice, strong arms and truck shots. These will prevail. The people of the loyal States have these elements of success. They should use everything that will either hurt or scare the enemy.

The speaker was frequently interrupted by applause.

SPEECH OF GEN. SHEPLEY.

Gen. SHEPLEY, Military Governor of Louisiana, said the man who is a friend of the country is his friend, and the man against the country his enemy. We are friends in a common cause. There was no ground for despondency, but for hope, confidence and ultimate triumph. He, among other things, alluded to the planting and defence of the Stars and Stripes in the so-called seceded States. A "long rope and short shrift" in New-Orleans tells the fate of a man who dares pull down the American flag, which is now again defended by men from the green hills of Vermont, the pine woods of Maine and the shores of Massachusetts Bay, and they will carry with them some lessons which have been handed down from the rock of Plymouth, and from the Declaration of Independence, and the Articles of Confederation, which came over in the Mayflower—lessons of a permanent character, which men of the South might well read hereafter for their good. (Applause and laughter.) He knew of only one issue, and that was to put down the rebellion. He would separate the sheep from the goats, (laughter,) in persons and property, and destroy everything belonging to the enemy to be contraband, to be used against him. If there was one weed of treason in this city, as had been stated, let it be plucked out. His remarks throughout were applauded. It having been announced by Gen. CLARK that Gen. SHEPLEY was the man who hung MUMFORD for hauling down the American flag in New-Orleans, the immense assembly gave him three cheers; but Gen. SHEPLEY said the honor belonged not to him, but to Gen. BUTLER.

SPEECH OF GEN. SHIELDS.

Gen. SHIELDS said theirs and resolutions will never whip the Secessionists and put down the rebellion. We must do more than this. We must do away with old party divisions, and unite in a great common cause against man, women and children who are smitten with the infernal madness of the rebellion. If we can only throw 100,000 fresh men in the field, we can crush the rebellion now and forever. What he meant was, we must do as we did in Mexico during the Mexican war, is "A little more grape!" (Excessive laughter and repeated applause.)

SPEECH OF HON. ROBERT WALKER.

Hon. ROBERT WALKER briefly expressed his views. The call for an additional 600,000 was an announcement to patriots and traitors that the Union must and shall be preserved. He considered this the brightest day yet for the country, because this number of troops will certainly put down the rebellion.

SPEECH OF HON. RICHARD W. THOMPSON.

Hon. RICHARD W. THOMPSON, of Indiana, mentioned the obligation upon every one, second alone to the duty of God, to defend the Constitution and Union. He uttered encouraging language, exhorting his hearers to sink party, at least until the rebellion shall be crushed, of which there are cheering prospects; and all unite in one great, glorious effort to defeat the enemy, who is now striving to overthrow the Republican Government.

It was now 5¾ o'clock. Rockets were repeatedly sent up, and music performed, and the exercises were additionally varied by a patriotic song from the Glee Club of the Second District Regiment.

SPEECH OF SENATOR HARLAN.

Senator HARLAN, of Iowa, said he was not here to administer unqualified praise to any man, and that McCLELLAN had the military power to march upon Richmond at the time he ordered the retreat to James River. He believed, however, that that officer did what he deemed best for the interests of the country. We have no need, in this Republic, for Napoleons, for the people themselves would do the work. He advocated the employment of negroes to assist in putting down the rebellion. He saw no reason why the black man should be exempt from the burdens of war. Were they the only privileged classes? (Cries of "No," and laughter and applause.) Would you require the sacrifice of white men to protect the negro? The rebels do not arm the negroes because they are afraid, and we do not because we are too proud.

SPEECH OF GEN. CARRINGTON.

Gen. CARRINGTON, United States Marshal for the District of Columbia, said the best speeches was for young men to shoulder the musket and offer their services to the country, and for the old men to put their hands into their pockets, and contribute money to defray the expenses of the war. He was opposed to the introduction of party politics in the present condition of the country. He drew a novel picture of the Republic as it was before the rebellion, and spoke of the enormity and wickedness of the rebellion. If we depend upon negroes to do our fighting, we lean upon a broken reed. He complimented the District of Columbia on its fidelity to the Union, and patriotism in furnishing a larger proportionate quota than any in the Union. He warned the Secessionists in this city from hoping to expect grace or favor from Jeff. DAVIS, and remarked: Your only hope is in ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

SPEECH OF HON. JAMES S. ROLLINS.

Hon. JAMES S. ROLLINS, of Missouri, thought it proper that that State should be represented at this meeting, as she is destined to be the centre of the great American Union. He reviewed the history of the rebellion, saying, we are not fighting our own battles merely, but for civil liberty throughout the globe. He differed from the views of Senator HARLAN in regard to the conduct of the war.

SPEECH OF SENATOR CLARK.

Mr. CLARK, State Senator from Virginia, urged the re-peopling of that State by immigration from the North. He concluded by extending an invitation to the crowd to attend a Union meeting at Alexandria next Tuesday night.

The assembly separated with three cheers for the Union, three for the President, three for the army and three for the navy. These cheers were followed by music. That this demonstration has been a complete success in the whole and in all its parts, is conceded here by all who have any knowledge of the work it has cost. For this, too much credit cannot be awarded to the Committee of Arrangements, who have left nothing undone to give to the country the emphatic expression from the Federal Capital.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

THE GREAT WAR MEETING.

The most significant feature of the great War Meeting here to-day, was the demand, embodied in the resolutions, forcibly dwelt on by the first speaker, and urged by every one that followed him, and rapturously applauded by the immense crowd whenever alluded to, that rebels and their sympathizers should be weeded out of the Departments and driven from the District. Mr. CHENOWETH's declaration, that he found the other day a clerk in one of the most important positions in the Government's service, where he had the utmost facilities for learning, at the earliest moment, of the movements of our armies, orders to Generals, who, a few months ago, had been ignominiously expelled from a similar position for disloyalty, and had subsequently been arrested for traitorous conduct in Maryland, produced profound sensation. The statement was repeatedly made during the meeting that a large number of such persons still retain important positions.

The resolution calling for the expulsion of disloyal persons from the District, had just been read a second time, in response to a demand for re-reading, when the President came in. When the applause over the President's arrival was ended, and the clanking to speed, the crowd demanded that the resolution should be read a third time, for the President's benefit, and it was read.

Scarcely less significant was the temper of the crowd on the vigorous prosecution of the war. Every declaration that the time for timid measures was past; that the property of rebels must be confiscated; that the conciliation of traitors must henceforth be abandoned, was applauded to the echo.

ANTICIPATED MOVEMENTS BY THE REBELS.

The call for six hundred thousand men, coupled with some other developments, lead to the belief that the Government is anticipating a formidable aggressive demonstration by the rebels within a few weeks. The fact that the rebels have been so remarkably quiet of late, and that they have made no movements against McCLELLAN, are construed as indicating a preparation for some sudden attack, the plan for which is yet kept secret. The Government is believed to be apprehensive of something of this sort.

JOHN SLIDELL ON SLAVERY.

A member of the Foreign Legations in Washington just arrived from Europe, relates of this distinguished rebel a story which is now widely circulated in this city.

One of his cousins, who holds an office in the Department of the Interior, in France, having been invited to one of SLIDELL's soirées, availed himself of the opportunity—first, to see how a Southern rebel looked; second, to know his opinion about Slavery. As it may well be imagined, the French official was the object of the most delicate attention on the part of Mrs. SLIDELL and her husband, who strove to persuade him of the holiness of the Southern cause, and to make him believe in its ultimate success. After having exhausted all their arguments, the Frenchman, politely addressing Mr. SLIDELL, asked whether he was not of opinion that the moral attitude of the North in this contest, was an impediment to the success of the South, and if the maintenance of Slavery did not delay the work of its independence. "You are perfectly right," answered Mr. SLIDELL, "Europe is adverse to our institutions and we know it. But please mark, they have not been inaugurated or created, but inherited by us. However, whenever the day marked for the emancipation of our social privileges will come, the slave-owners in the South will do, I have no doubt, what your ancestors did, nearly an age ago, in the National Assembly of France. They will sacrifice them as a necessary offering to their country's peace and welfare. But now this sacrifice is impossible. It would look as an act of inefficiency on the part of the South to maintain its integrity, and would weaken rather than strengthen us. Be sure, however, that the time is not distant when the institution of Slavery—cause of our present misery—will be forever removed from our statute books. The French Government can greatly assist us in this; if it acts with its proverbial prudence and sagacity, it may place us in the necessity of shortly declaring gradual emancipation at home; an act which would be as satisfactory to many of us as to the spirit of Christianity and civilization abroad."

THE TREATY WITH THE OTTOMAN PORTE.

The treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and the Ottoman Empire is officially proclaimed. It is marked throughout by much liberality. Tobacco and salt, however, are not included among the articles which our citizens are permitted to import into the Ottoman dominions. But as a compensation for their prohibition, no duty whatever shall in future be levied upon them when exported from the Ottoman Empire by citizens of the United States.

ARRESTS ON THE RAPPAHANNOCK.

Six persons were recently arrested on the Rappahannock, while engaged in shipping salt and other articles in great demand in Richmond across that river for the benefit of our enemies. The prisoners were remanded to the Old Capitol Prison.

ARMY ORDERS.

Brig.-Gen. CASEY is in Washington. It is reported he is to appear before the Army Retiring Board, now in session in this city, to be placed on the retired list.

Gen. JAMESON left Washington to-day for New-York, en route for Maine, accompanied by his wife and Maj. MANN, of Maine. He is quite feeble, but it is supposed the cooler and more bracing air of the North will have a great tendency to rally him.

Brig.-Gen. E. K. S. CASEY is relieved from duty in the Department of New-Mexico, and ordered to report, in person, to the Secretary of War.

Brig.-Gen. W. L. ELZEY is relieved from duty with the army of the Mississippi, and ordered to report for duty to Maj.-Gen. POPE.

Lieut. W. W. QUEEN has been ordered to the Navy-yard at Washington for ordnance duty.

Assistant Paymaster WM. H. WEBBER and Acting Assistant Paymaster ALEX. W. PEARSON have been ordered to the Western flotilla.

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, Aug. 5.

The transports which conveyed the rebel prisoners up James River, yesterday, were stopped this side of Harrison's Landing, by an order from Gen. McCLELLAN. These are the prisoners from Fort Delaware, and the cause of their being stopped is said to be owing to some difficulty in the exchange of prisoners with the rebels.

The Louisiana, with 317 wounded prisoners from Richmond, and the Kennebec, with 279, arrived this morning, under orders to report to Surgeon R. A. GUNNAR, Medical Director of this Department. 120 of the slight cases have been sent to the Chesapeake Hospital. The severe cases will be sent to Philadelphia at an early date. The Kennebec, with only slight cases on board, has been ordered to Point Lookout, where they will have every accommodation.

Arrest of Editors in Harrisburgh.

HARRISBURGH, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Gen. WADSWORTH, by direction of the War Department, to-day, arrested the editors and publishers of the Patriot and Union, charged with issuing treasonable posters, calculated to retard and embarrass recruiting throughout the State. The whole party left for Washington this morning.

Affairs in Canada.

TORONTO, C. W., Wednesday, Aug. 6.

The Captain and crew of the steamer City of Madison, an American boat, partially owned by Canadians, were arrested here, to-day, for inducing British soldiers to desert. Several soldiers of the Thirtieth Regiment have reached Oswego by this boat during the past four weeks.

The City of Washington Outward Bound.

CAPE RACE, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

The steamship City of Washington, from New-York on Saturday last, passed this point at 3 o'clock this afternoon, en route to Liverpool. She was boarded by the Associated Press news yacht and later news put aboard, as also several messages from the Commercial Agency of CHARLES SHONE, Esq. The weather to-day has been beautifully clear, with a fair prospect of its continuance.

FROM GEN. M'CLELLAN'S ARMY.

Resumption of Offensive Operations.

Important Reconnoissance to Within Ten Miles of Richmond.

Fighting at Malvern Hill and White-Oak Swamp Bridge.

DEFEAT AND FLIGHT OF THE REBELS.

A Heavy Body of Troops Thrown Across the James River.

Porter's Mortar Fleet Come Up the River.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

The Army of the Potomac has again assumed the offensive.

The reconnoissances made yesterday, under Gen. HOOKER, to Malvern Hill, White Oak Swamp Bridge, and in the direction of New-Market and Richmond, was in every respect a complete success.

The troops left camp about dark, night before last, arriving at Malvern Hill at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, a distance of ten miles. Here they encountered two regiments of infantry and a battery posted behind earthworks. Fire was immediately opened on them by Capt. BANCROFT's Battery, and a section of Capt. ROBERTS'.

The infantry was not engaged. The firing lasted about three hours, when the rebels ingloriously fled by the river road toward Richmond, hotly pursued by our troops, who succeeded in taking 100 of them prisoners.

The loss on our side at this point was three killed and eleven wounded. Capt. BANCROFT lost his thigh broken by a piece of shell. The doctors think the leg can be saved. Lieut.-Col. GARRETT, of the Eighth Illinois Cavalry, was severely wounded in the breast while driving in the enemy's pickets.

Col. AVERILL, with 500 cavalry, took the Quaker road to White Oak Swamp Bridge. There they found the Tenth Virginia Cavalry drawn up to receive them. A charge was immediately ordered, which broke the rebels lines, when they fled. Col. AVERILL followed them three miles, taking twenty-eight prisoners, without losing a man.

Gen. PLEASANTON, with a force of cavalry, took the New-Market Road, on which a portion of the rebels were retreating. He followed them to within a short distance of New-Market, where, meeting two brigades of rebels, he fell back, bringing over thirty prisoners, taken on the way. New-Market is within ten miles of Richmond.

This ended the operations for the day, when the troops went into camp on Malvern Hill.

Gen. McCLELLAN, who went to the scene of action early yesterday morning, has not returned.

Three thousand of our prisoners will arrive to-day from Richmond, in exchange for a similar number sent up on Monday.

Everything is quiet on the opposite side of the river.

OUR SPECIAL ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

Operations on the Lower Side of the James—The Late Important Reconnoissance towards Petersburgh—A Heavy Body of Troops Thrown Across the River—Porter's Mortar Fleet on Hand—The Experiences of a Surgeon in Richmond, &c.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Monday, Aug. 4, 1862.

Yesterday about 2,000 infantry, cavalry and artillery crossed James River at Westover Landing. They remained on guard while the engineers and contrabands felled trees, constructed roads, &c.

At 5 o'clock in the evening firing was noticed from the gunboats off City Point. It was thought at first that the Richmond was coming down, but it proved to be our gunboats shelling the woods. Firing in the distance was also heard during the night.

Every evening before dark the gunboats move up from below, and take position within easy distance of City Point.

A force of cavalry will soon make a reconnoissance on the south side of the river, for the purpose of ascertaining the whereabouts of the enemy's line, also of discovering his strong and weak points.

Three large transports, flying a flag of truce, and laden with Union soldiers from Richmond, came down from City Point in the afternoon.

Dr. O. MUNSON, Assistant-Surgeon in the Fifth New-York Zouaves, arrived here on a flag of truce boat last Monday. He was among the Surgeons who remained at Savage's Station, to attend and administer to our wounded, at the time the army fought its way to James River. He corroborates the statements others have already made, in reference to the brutal treatment our sick and wounded at Savage's received at the hands of the rebels, and adds further that the rebels did not hesitate to remove for their own use the few subsistence stores that himself and other surgeons had snatched from the burning pile, in order to keep our helpless soldiers from starving. Aware of the perilous condition to which our suffering men were reduced, and the importance of immediate action in their behalf, Dr. MUNSON, accompanied by two other surgeons, succeeded in leave and followed the railroad track into Richmond, with the intention of consulting the Confederate Medical Director, and, if possible, making some arrangements by which our sick and wounded could at least be recognized as civilized beings, and not as dogs. Arriving at the Richmond Depôt, Dr. MUNSON respectfully inquired of a rebel officer the direction he should take to reach the medical headquarters. The officer eyed him for a moment, and replied that he would shortly accompany him and his party thither. The party, not being disposed to await the movements of the officer, and feeling confident that they were entitled to all the immunities usually accorded to the profession, proceeded from the depôt, determined to ascertain for themselves the object of their search. They had progressed but a few yards, however, when they were halted by the officer, and ordered to return. In about half an hour, the officer announced his readiness to conduct them into town. By this time, the surgeons had discovered that they were regarded as prisoners, and that no respect was paid to their profession. They did not suppose, however, that they would be taken elsewhere than to the office of the Medical Director, and were greatly surprised, upon reaching the Libby Jail, to find themselves marched within its walls. One thousand Union prisoners were already packed into its spacious Halls. The unscalinness of the place, the foul atmosphere, the scanty supply of nourishing food, or, for that matter, of any kind of food, the cruelty and the barbarous demeanor of the base, yellow-skinned, heathenish animals acting as guards contributed to make the Libby Jail one of the most frightful places this side of Fredericksburg. The surgeons heard related the experiences of numerous inmates of that and other prisons in Richmond. The treatment of Dr. MUNSON is equally revolting. He declares that our men shout with joy upon being placed on board a Union transport, after having endured, for perhaps months, of the most poisonous food, the ever known or practiced in slavery the most vile epithets offered by the rebels—and many have not the means of properly caring for prisoners—food and fuel, with them a pretext for acting like savages and robbing, not only the wounded of their valuables, but the surgeons of their instruments and medical stores. Gen. JOHN BELL HOOD had the impudence to reprimand Dr. MUNSON for not giving more attention to his rebel wounded. The Doctor retaliated by reminding the fellow of the fact that everything in had in the way of instruments and medicine had been ruthlessly taken from him by the Confederates, and remarked that no one but a fool would suggest his going among the sick and wounded, to minister them by informing them that he had not the means of comforting them. Dr. MUNSON finally succeeded in getting a note to the Medical Director, and after the expiration of two days was allowed to embark on board the train for Petersburgh, thence to City Point, where his ship of truce boat was waiting. When in Richmond several more attempts were made to capture his person. At last he was compelled to apply to Gen. LEE for a document showing that a surgeon could not lawfully be dispossessed of his personal property. But that did not enable him to bring his horse from Richmond, as he was told, at the Petersburgh depôt, that transportation was furnished only for men. By this trick the rebels managed to secure a faithful and valuable animal.

In connection with the foregoing account, the conduct of a Union soldier, named LAMSON, will conform to the citizens of Albany, and who was acting as Warden at the Savage Station Hospital, should be held up for lasting detestation by all mankind. The hospital was under the charge of Dr. SWINBURN, of Albany, and under the superintendence of Dr. MUNSON. The rebels having taken away most of the hospital stewards and attendants, left many extra duties to be performed by the surgeons and the few remaining convalescent soldiers—consequently, a few days elapsed before every department could be properly organized. One of the duties devolved upon LAMSON was to search the pockets of the dead, and deliver the effects to Dr. MUNSON. It appears, that during the press of work, it was the practice of LAMSON to retain a large amount of valuables, and without them either in his pockets or his trunk. Suspicion was aroused and his movements were watched, and a favorable opportunity presenting itself, Dr. SWINBURN and MUNSON called upon him at his quarters, and interrogated him, as to his proceedings. LAMSON said he came out with between $60 and $70, and upon being asked to exhibit it, did so, remarking, at the same time, that it was all the money he possessed. Upon being pressed to carefully search his pockets for more, he extracted an additional amount of $60. Dr. SWINBURN urged another trial, when out came $10 more. In fact, each pocket contained a roll of money—amounting, in the aggregate, to over $130. He explained the circumstance of his money exceeding the amount as first stated, by saying that he obtained the surplus by exchanging Confederate for United States Treasury Notes with his own comrades.

LAMSON was also forced to produce a gold watch and silver watch-case, which he had taken from the body of Lieut. FRENCH, formerly Aid to Gen. SUMNER. The watch had been hit with a bullet. He also gave up a silver watch and four gold rings. At first he denied having any of these articles in his possession.

Dr. SWINBURN made him hand over $60 of the money, to be appropriated toward a general hospital fund. Of course he had no authority power to institute proceedings against him. LAMSON is now at the North. WHIT.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Tuesday, Aug. 5, 1862.

At 5 o'clock Sunday morning, one hundred and fifty men of the Fifth United States Cavalry, and one hundred and fifty men of the Third Pennsylvania Cavalry, the entire force under command of Gen. AVERILL, left the mail dock landing and crossed to the opposite side of James River, for the purpose of making a reconnoissance of the district beyond. Three regiments of infantry, which had been sent over the day previous, were stationed half a mile from the river, protecting a fatigue party who were at work felling trees. The cavalry started on the reconnoissance at 9 A. M., and had advanced one mile from the river when they discovered the enemy's videttes in their front. The course taken was in the direction of Petersburgh. After firing a few shots up the advance company, which was commanded by Lieut. [illegible], of the Fifth United States Cavalry, the enemy retreated precipitately on the road leading to Petersburgh. Our cavalry gave him hot pursuit, firing upon him at intervals, until they came up to his camp, situated near a Methodist church, and seven miles from the James River. Here our force halted, but the rebels continued in their flight, not nothing more was seen of the party. The rebels numbered about [illegible] men. We had one man belonging to the Fifth slight ly wounded, and had one horse killed.

Several of our shots took effect among the enemy. We captured three of his men and took two horses. One of the prisoners is named HAMMOND, and he is a relative of Dr. COX, formerly Mayor of Baltimore. He was wounded in the neck, and expressed his pleasure at being taken prisoner, and said that he had been forced into the rebel service.

The cavalry burnt the enemy's camp, camp equipage and baggage; also, a [illegible] commissary store, and [illegible] sugar property. They returned to James River in the afternoon, bringing with them chickens, green corn, new potatoes, and some [illegible] other camp delicacies, which were a great treat to persons in possession of the enemy. The cavalry also secured some books, documents and letters which had been left in the camp. On their way to the river sixty rebel cavalry came upon them from the Darbin road, but they immediately turned tail and left them to themselves contentment.

Some of our men went over to Charles's Hotel, where the rebels had placed sentinels on the night of the attack upon our river front. They picked up bandages stained with blood, strychnine, and other things which indicated that the gunboats had some execution.

A considerable force, consisting of infantry, cavalry and artillery, crossed over to the south side of the river yesterday and last night.

Periodic murmur fired away up during the night, and continued its course up the river.

Artillery firing has been heard this morning at a distance, apparently six or eight miles off, in the direction of Malvern Hill. A heavy force was sent out that way last night to reconnoitre.

We may expect lively times soon. WHIT.

Affairs in Albany.

ALBANY, Wednesday, Aug. 6.

The biennial meeting of the Judges of the Supreme Court to revise the rules should have taken place to-day, but no quorum being in attendance those present could not legally act, and therefore adjourned.

The Democratic State Convention Committee will meet at the Delavan House, Albany, Wednesday, Aug. 13, to fix the time for holding the Democratic State Convention.

Gov. MORGAN is at Washington. He is expected to return to-morrow evening, when orders for a draft will probably be issued.
